National Guard Gets Assurances From President

WASHINGTON (UP) — National Guard leaders said today President Eisenhower has assured them he will not permit the guard to be "destroyed or reduced materially in strength."

Officials of the National Guard Association called on the President to ask him to reverse an Army decision requiring all new guard enlistees to take six months of basic training, starting April 1.

The association opposes this plan, claiming it would hinder guard enlistments. Representatives of the guard urged the President to adopt their alternative plan requiring only 11 weeks of basic training.

Both the President and Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson are strongly behind the six months plan.

Remark Not Discussed

National Guard officials present at today's White House meeting said Wilson's recent criticism of the guard did not come up. Wilson caused a furor by charging a "sort of scandal" developed in the guard during the Korean war He said many youths used it for "draft-dodging."

Mr. Eisenhower has termed Wilson's remark "very unwise."

Acting as spokesman for the guard group, Maj. Gen. Milton A. Reckord, adjutant general of Maryland, said the President was "very receptive and assured us he would not permit the guard to be destroyed or reduced materially in strength."

Reckord said he did not believe Wilson was attempting to destroy the guard, but added he thought certain Defense Department officials were pursuing such a purpose. He did not name the officials.

The meeting today was arranged by Maj. Gen. E.A. Walsh, president of the National Guard Association who did not join the White House conference. Walsh last week denounced Wilson's statement as "a damn lie."

Guard Officials Attend

Others present at the White House meeting were Maj. Gen. Ronald C. Brock, commanding general of the 27th Armored Division and commander - designate of the New York National Guard; Maj. Gen. Edward D. Sirois, former commander of the 26th Infantry Division and former chairman of the Army General Staff Committee for National Guard policy; and Maj. Gen Earle M. Jones, California adjutant general.

With Wilson in Florida, the President called in the guard officials to try to smooth over the angry row caused by Wilson's remarks.

Hospital at Brownsville Is Called 'Captive'

The editor of the Allegheny County Medical Society's bulletin has named Brownsville General Hospital a "captive" institution.

The editor, Dr. William A. Barrett, indirectly charged the United Mine Workers of America with seizure of the hospital.

In an article dealing with the medical profession's controversy with UMW's Welfare Fund, Dr. Barrett stated there has been "complete infiltration and control" of Brownsville Hospital and its medical staff.

Dr. Barrett's article did not elaborate on who had secured control of the institution. But, one source said the doctor clearly intimated in his article that it was the UMW which had gained control.

Clark P. Brown, superintendent of the Brownsville Hospital, declined to comment on the matter, stating he had not read yet the bulletin in question.

School Board In Fayette City To Protest Tax

Fayette City school board officials will meet with Fayette County Commissioners on Wednesday to discuss assessment valuations which have created a storm of protests in this area.

James E. Hamer, school board president, said he plans to protest the assessment on several properties at the meeting.

A community protest meeting was held several months ago, at which time hundreds of Fayette residents filed protests to "exorbitant" assessment increases in their tax notices.

Most owners, however, have been able to claim re-adjustments on the assessing.

Hamer said residents have complained chiefly of the method of tax valuation utilized in the new assessment system being employed by the county.

$1 Million Fire in Pittsburgh

PITTSBURGH (UP) — A $1 million five-alarm fire raged more than 24 hours in the city's Golden Triangle before it was finally extinguished at 4:30 a.m. today.

The blaze destroyed a six-story building on Liberty Avenue in the downtown business district. Nine firemen were injured and more than 30 others felled by smoke.

Fire Chief Stephen Adley, himself a victim of too much smoke, said the fire was the "most stubborn I've encountered in 27 years." Adley collapsed when he entered the still burning building alone after ordering his men out.

He estimated fire damage at $100,000, but smoke and water loss in neighboring structures was expected to top $1 million. Water filled the basement of every building in the block, and all nearby stores reported heavy smoke damage.

Firemen manned aerial ladders to pour additional tons of water on the smouldering ruins early today to prevent a repetition of Sunday night when firemen twice thought they had the blaze under control only to suffer casualties when it broke out again.

Firemen Trapped

The fire broke out about 4:15 a.m. Sunday in a false ceiling of the recently remodeled Fred Astaire dance studios at street level.

The flames, barely visible from the outside, ate upwards. Two squads of firemen, entering from the front and rear, were trapped under falling plaster and beams when the ceiling collapsed while they were inspecting the first floor. Nine were taken to district hospitals, but none was reported in serious condition.

The fire was fed by a quantity of lacquer and other inflammable liquids stored in the building. Adley considered the blaze under control Sunday night when the flames were confined to the six-story building. But the fire spread to an adjoining building housing the Baldwin Piano Co.

Jack Armstrong, manager of the Baldwin firm, said he found "three quarters of a million dollars worth of pianos and electric organs ruined by water."

Claims Meeting of Big Four Possible

LONDON (UP)—The Daily Mail reported today that Britain, the United States and France are discussing the possibility of a Big Four meeting with Russia in the near future.

"The talks are aimed at fixing a date and deciding the policy the West should follow at the conference table," the newspaper said.

It said in the Western view a summit conference should discuss the urgent problems of the reunification of Germany and the future of Hungary, Poland and other satellites.

FIRE DAMAGES HOME — This is what remains of the home of Joseph Black, Washington Township, following a Saturday night fire which caused some $10,000 in damage and forced four persons out into the cold.

Four Homeless as Fire Guts Washington Township Home

A family of four was left homeless Saturday night when fire leveled the home of Joseph Black in Washington Township off Route 51 near Perryopolis.

According to Perryopolis Fire Chief Frank Frescura, the blaze erupted in the home Saturday night while the family was away. He estimated the loss at $10.000.

All furniture and other possessions of the Blacks were destroyed in the fire, along with $600 cached in the basement.

The chief soid the blaze apparently stemmed from an overheated furnace in the cellar.

Firemen had a bitter struggle to confine flames to the burning structure.

Perryopolis firemen were summoned again last night to check possible outbreak of flames on the farm of Paul Loos, on Route 711, Vanderbilt road.

Yesterday afternoon, Belle Vernon firemen were called to quell a tree fire at the farm of Jack Johnson on Route 51. Firemen said flames threatened to swarm over a nearby barn for a short time.

Two Injured in Area Accidents Over Weekend

A Monessen man and a Fayette City woman were injured in weekend accidents reported today by State Police at Belle Vernon.

Richard Adamcheck, 27, of 409 Reed avenue, Monessen, received possible rib injuries and lacerations of the upper lip when his car apparently collided with the rear of a vehicle owned by Joseph Medved, 21, of Grindstone, and parked on the Monessen-Belle Vernon road, Route 906.

Medved's car, police stated, had been in an accident previously and was awaiting a tow truck when hit by Adamcheck's car. Police said Medved had lost control of the car, causing it to overturn.

Damage to both vehicles was heavy, police reported.

Adamcheck was treated at Charleroi-Monessen Hospital and released.

Mrs. Nancy Williamson, of R. D. 1, Fayette City, was hospitalized after an auto accident on the Belle Vernon-Fayette City road Saturday. She is in Charleroi-Monessen Hospital with a laceration of the tongue and bruises of the right knee.

No one was injured in a two-car crash on the Monessen-Webster Road, Route 906, about 5:30 this morning.

Police said cars driven by Carl Davis, 41, of 640 Third street, Donora, and Alton Davis, 33, of 1134 Schoonmaker avenue, Monessen, collided, causing an estimated $1,800 damage.

Three Accidents Here; Driver Is Arrested

Three auto accidents occurred in Monessen over the weekend, Chief of Police Michael Kuvinka reported today.

One of the accidents resulted in John Bogdon, 57, of 915 Second street, Monessen, being arrested for drunken driving. Police said Bogdon was attempting a left turn off Schoonmaker avenue onto Monessen boulevard when he struck a truck belonging to Reick's Dairy, of Charleroi, and driven by George Zinsius, of Meadow avenue, Charleroi.

Bogdon was pronounced under the influence of liquor by Dr. Fred Campana, City physician. He was released on $500 bond pending a hearing before Alderman Emil Gaspich.

Minor damages resulted from the other accidents.

Dominic Anthony, of 406 Ontario street, was traveling west on Donner avenue Saturday afternoon when his car was struck in the rear by a machine operated by Mary Louise Renkey, of 114 Homewood avenue, Belle Vernon.

Arnold Kronander, of Charleroi, assumed responsibility, police said, when the car he was driving struck the rear of a Yell-o Cab near Second street and Donner avenue early yesterday morning. Francis Miller, of 161 Schoonmaker avenue, was the cab driver.

California to Seek Relocation Of Route 88

California borough council has requested the state department of highways to relocate Route 88 as a low-level road from West Brownsville to Roscoe.

The action was taken on the advice of C. O. Williams, state assemblyman, who attended the meeting.

Such a low-level road did exist at one time, it was pointed out during the discussion. It ran from California to Roscoe and was known as Township Route 405. The road was made impassable in 1917 when the Eclipse tipple was built.

According to information available, the tipple, now owned by Republic Steel Corp., may be moved with the coal to be hauled up river by truck to a washing plant. If the tipple were eliminated, the way would be open for construction of the low level road.

Williams pointed out that resolutions similar to that adopted by California council should be adopted by both West Brownsville and Coal Center in as much as the road would be partially located in both those communities.

Rescue Crews Find Bodies; Many Escape

BISHOP, Va. (UP) — An explosion deep in one of the nation's largest soft coal mines today killed between 35 and 40 miners.

Searchers found the bodies of the miners some six hours after the blast at Pocahontas Fuel Company's Bishop mine on the Virginia-West Virginia border.

The company issued a statement saying there were "less than 40 men involved" in the disaster and that "of this number there are no survivors."

The company said the cause of the explosion was not known but earlier an official indicated that gas was believed to have touched off the blast.

Three Crews Trapped

The blast trapped three crews of about 12 men each some 2.000 feet from the mouth of the mine at 1:55 a.m. (EST), the company said. The crews were digging coal from the face of the No. 3 seam of the Pocahontas mine field in the heart of the soft coal belt.

The company statement said the blast occurred 2,200 feet from the bottom of a new air shaft. There were approximately 177 men inside at the time and most of them got out through another opening, the statement said.

Mine dispatcher Robert P. Meade said exploding gas apparently caused the mine disaster. Bad air and smoke hampered rescue workers as they tried to reach the trapped miners.

A. V. Sproles, vice president of the Pocahontas firm, and West Virginia Mines Department Inspector Julius Olzer issued a joint statement giving details of the explosion. They said the section where the blast occurred was examined by a fire boss just before the workmen entered the mine at midnight, to work on the 12 to 8 a.m. shift.

They said the examination showed that the section "was free of hazard at the time of the inspection."

Working At Six Places

At the time of the explosion, the statement said, the three crews were working at six different hole faces. A foreman and four other miners were equipped with apparatus for the detection of gas.

The U.S. Bureau of Mines in Washington flew two officials to the scene.

The town of bishop is supported solely by the Pocahontas mine, which works around the clock to produce, wash and ship out 10,000 tons of coal a day.

The mine is the second largest in the Pocahontas coal fields and is one of the largest in the United States.

Phone 'Honor' System Scrapped In Washington

The telephone "honor" systen at Washington County courthouse has been scrapped.

This means that all future calls made from the courthouse through the switchboard will be placed by the operator of the switchboard.

When the new dial system went into use in early December the method for making a call from the courthouse was to pick up a receiver and ask the operator for caller dialed the number he wished to reach.

The only trouble was that when the bills started rolling into the County Commissioners, a huge number of toll calls were charged that the operators could not account for.

Prior to the start of the dial system, the courthouse operator either placed the toll calls with the operator or connected the caller with a local operator if the call was local. Toll calls were charged against the caller unless it was official county business.

The commissioners, it was learned, realize that the new method of having the courthouse operator dial all outside calls would work a hardship on the operator and perhaps delay service, but they said that no other solution to the problem had been advanced.

Boys' Brigade Band Practice

The first band practice of the newly organized Monessen Drum and Bugle Corps Chapter of the United Boys' Brigade Club will be held tonight from 7 to 10 p. m. at the Salvation Army building at Third street and Schoonmaker avenue.

Those who enrolled last week are urged to be present.

Bill Jodon, in charge of the local group, said any youth between the ages of 14 and 18 is eligible to join and can enroll tonight.

Jodon said it is not necessary for a youth to know how to play a musical instrument in order to qualify for enrollment. A qualified instructor will give lessons.

Leader Will Present Budget To Joint Session Tomorrow

HARRISBURG (UP) — Gov. George M. Leader today put the finishing touches on an expected record $2-billion budget while the Republican legislative majority adopted a "wait and see" policy on what to do with it.

The governor will go before a joint session of the General Assembly Tuesday to submit his proposals for financing the Commonwealth during the last two years of his administration.

But with both the Senate and House under Republican control, the governor may face some formidable roadblocks in his programs for improvement and expansion of state services.

The governor to date has given no indication of his position on taxes, although it was reported he will point out the need for some $300,000,000 in additional revenue. His bipartisan Tax Study Committee said recently $240.000,000 more money is needed in the next two years, based on an estimated $79,000,000 deficit at the end of the current 1955-57 fiscal period.

The committee recommended retention of the 3 per cent sales tax with fewer exemptions, a one cent tax on soft drinks, the sales tax applied to all alcoholic drinks consumed on licensed premises, and continuation of the one cent "flood relief" tax on cigarets.

In his "State of the Commonwealth" message to the lawmakers Jan. 1 the governor indicated he will ask for increased appropriations in the fields of mental health, his industrial development program, health and public school construction.

Meanwhile, Republican legislative leaders conferred for three hours Sunday night to plan party strategy and policy for the session.

Republican State Chairman George I. Bloom said the conferees had "nothing to say" about the forthcoming budget until they have a chance to study it.

But earlier Bloom indicated the Republican majority would look cooly on any proposals for additional outlays of money.

He called for an end to "unrestrained spending" and said "there is still time to save millions of the taxpayers money if the governor will only act."

In the House, which receives all revenue bills, Majority Leader Albert W. Johnson (R-McKean) said the chamber's Appropriations Committee should be able to whittle the budget "down to size" by the end of March after it has "determined what the state's rock bottom needs are."

Johnson said the House will "write a revenue program to fit the cloth as we choose to cut it."

Both chambers were expected to mark time today in preparation for the governor's budget message. The House will hear a prayer for its chief clerk, William E. Habbyshaw, Hummelstown, who died over the weekend, and then was expected to transact regular business.

The Senate will reconvene at 3 p.m. and the House at 4.30 p.m.

Eden Gives Support To Ike Doctrine

BALBOA, Canal Zone (UP)—Former British Prime Minister Anthony Eden expressed qualified approval of President Eisenhower's Middle East doctrine Sunday.

Before sailing aboard the liner Rangantila, the ailing Eden said he welcomed the plan "as far as it goes" but felt it left uncertain several points considering the future of the Suez Canal.

Loughran Asks Macing Probe

The split within the Westmoreland County Democratic party was widened further today when Joseph M. Loughran, an anti-organization candidate for common pleas judge, asked for an investigation of "coercion and macing by the superintendent of state highways in Westmoreland County."

Loughran asked for the investigation in a telegram sent last night to Joseph J. Lawlor, secretary of highways. Patrick McShane, of Scottdale, is superintendent of highways in the county.

The telegram signed by Loughran stated:

"As chairman of the Westmoreland County Democratic Finance Committee during Gov. George Leader's campaign, I am asking you to investigate the matter of coercion and macing by the Superintendent of Highways in Westmoreland County on behalf of certain judicial candidates. I, myself, am a candidate for common pleas court in Westmoreland County. I suggest your personal investigation immediately. A copy of this telegram is being sent simultaneously to Governor Leader and newspapers."

A reliable source close to Loughran told The Independent that state highway employes in the county were "forced" to purchase tickets for parties held on Jan. 18 and Feb. 1 at the New Park Dale Tavern, of Ruffsdale, which is owned and operated by McShane.

The source said the revenue from these parties were earmarked for Loughran's opponents' fund campaigns.

McShane termed Loughran's charges "a lot of bunk."

Always so sweet in your own special way,
Always so thoughtful in all that you do,
Always so dear to us, Mother, that's you.

Drought Relief Vote May Come in House

WASHINGTON (UP) — Democrats pondered whether to force a showdown House vote today on their drought relief plan in the face of an 11th hour plea for delay from Secretary of Agriculture Ezra T. Benson.

An unusual parliamentary situation gave the Republicans a good chance to block passage of the bill today, if they chose to back up Benson's surprise request.

The bill was considered so non-controversial last week that it was scheduled for House action today under a procedure which would limit debate to 40 minutes and require a 2-1 vote for passage.

But Benson on Saturday passed the word to GOP Leader Joseph W. Martin Jr. that he wants action postponed. Benson said the House shouldn't vote on the Democratic plan until he had informed Congress of conclusions reached by President Eisenhower from his recent aerial inspection tour of drought areas.

Martin, in disclosing Benson's request, told a reporter Saturday that he anticipated a floor fight if Democratic leaders refused to hold up action on the measure.

The bill would require the government to offer to pay "rent" on millions of acres of drought-ridden pasture to induce owners to keep cattle off the parched land. The purpose is to prevent such pasture from being permanently damaged before it has a chance to re-seed itself.

London Papers Predict Cuts In Stiff Taxes

LONDON (UP)— A London newspaper predicted today that cuts in British defense spending as results of the Washington mission of Defense Minister Duncan Sandys could lead to a reduction of stiff British income taxes.

Sandys flew home Sunday from talks with Defense Secretary Charlesl E. Wilson and other American officials in Washington. The Sandys mission laid the groundwork for a sharing of knowledge of intercontinental guided missiles by the two countries.

Supply of the missiles to Britain is expected to bring sharp cutbacks in British spending on conventional armed forces.

The London Daily Sketch said if Sandys pushes through the defense cuts, which are expected to trim a sizeable amount from the $4.2 billion now set aside for defense expenditures, income taxes may well be reduced.

Cotton Is High Style In Operation Room

By H. N. BUNDESEN, M. D.

The well-dressed surgeon and nurse wear cotton. That is, when they are in the operating room.

It is generally advisable that all outer clothing as well as slips or stockings worn by doctors, nurses and other personnel during an operation be made of cotton. Outer garments of wool, rayon, silk, dacron, nylon, sharkskin and the like are usually banned in the operating room.

Why? To safeguard the patient, — and the attendants as well.

Some anesthetic agents, such as ether, are combustible. Should some anesthesia accidentally be released in an operating room, there might be a chance of an explosion.

For this reason, all concerned with the surgery wear cotton garments to prevent the possibility of static electricity setting off a blast.

They also wear plain leather shoes, sometimes with special insulating devices Moistened cotton boots also are permissible, but shoes with rubber or gum rubber soles are banned from the operating room.

We require that all rubber sheeting be fabricated from conductive rubber. Stretcher pads, the covers on the operating tables, pillows and cushions also should be made of conductive material.

All anesthetic equipment and operating tables must be grounded. Even the furniture should be made of metal or another material which will conduct electricity.

Hospitals also insist that surfaces on which movable objects are placed must not have paint, lacquer or other insulating finish if they are to be used in operating rooms.

Although such explosions are very infrequent, they do present a hazard in some cases. However, the patient generally is safer than he would be in his own bathtub.

Primo Carnera To Play Monster In TV Drama

By ALINE MOSBY

HOLLYWOOD (UP) — Primo Carnera, all 280 pounds of him, will scare the curlers and cold cream right off the housewives Tuesday afternoon when he shows up on television as Frankenstein's monster.

The former prizefighter now is a wrestler and restaurant operator and, like most ex-boxers, steps into greasepaint on television now and then.

But Carnera as a brutal monster on NBC's "Matinee Theater" will have to be all acting. In person today he sat quietly, smiling, a mild-mannered man. Even his handshake is gentle. although my hand was lost under his thumb.

"I've been on television in New York and I played maniac for three shows in the 'Cochise' series," Primo said in his heavy Italian accent. "Otherwise I work at the restaurant from 4 until midnight and go on wrestling tours."

Any resemblance to the movie Frankenstein monster. Boris Karloff, and Primo won't be noticed, promises "Matinee' producer Albert McClerry. The show follows the novel, not the move, so the monster will have a heavily veined face but no bolts sticking out of neck. Carnera will wear lifts on his shoes to make him even taller than his 6 feet 7-inch while he smashes chairs and throttles victims.

Greensburg Council Split Over Mayoralty Selection

County Courts To Choose if Council Doesn't

Greensburg's City Coundil met today in a last-ditch effort to select a mayor, but political observers predicted that no dicision will be reached.

In that case, the matter will go to Westmoreland County courts.

When Mayor Robert L. Potts died Jan. 7, Greensburg Council found itself split — politically — with two members Democrats and two Republicans.

Further complicating the issue is the fact that three of the four Council members reportedly have mayoralty ambitions.

Only Councilman A. A. Wesbecher, D., has no designs on the mayor's job, it was reported.

Republican councilman Homer Ruffner is a definite candidate in the GOP primary but is not interested in a temporary appointment to sit as mayor for this year.

Other Candidates

Joseph Rush, D., is a definite candidate in the Democratic primary and he supposedly would also accept a temporary appointment. Percy R. Sheetz, R., would like the temporary appointment and is also a "lukewarm" possibility to enter the GOP primary.

If Council reaches no agreement by Wednesday, the issue will go to the County courts, made up of Democrats. The speculation is that Rush will be named.

That, too, will cause a problem. Someone will have to fill Rush's spot on Council. The betting is that Deweese Armbrust, a Democrat who ran third in a fourman race for council in 1955, will win the court's approval.

Armbrust is seen as Rush's chief Democratic rival in the upcoming primary.

Reportedly Council would like to settle the issue without turning the matter over to the courts. However they have been able to reach no compromise as yet.

The only "dark horse" possibility has been Maj. Andrew J. Hudock, veteran Pennsylvania State Police officer. He is a registered Republican, though, and none of the councilmen seem anxious to cross party lines in an election year.

More Rain Is Forecast for Most of State

By UNITED PRESS

Intermittent rain was predicted throughout the central and eastern Pennsylvania today followed by partly cloudy weather through Tuesday.

High temperatures near 50 degrees in the extreme southeastern portion of Pennsylvania, ranging to the high 30s in the extreme northwestern portion were expected.

Low temperatures tonight will range from the low 20s in the northeast part of the state to the middle 30s in the extreme southeastern portion.

The weather bureau said the rain was due to a weak, low pressure system, centered in the early morning over the upper Ohio Valley, which was expected to move rapidly throughout the state. A high pressure over Nebraska this morning will move over the state Tuesday.

High temperatures Tuesday were expected to run five to eight degrees lower than Monday readings.

Loan Office Holdup Today

PITTSBURGH (UP)—Two gunman held up a North Side office of the Household Finance Co. today after posing as customers seeking a loan.

John Helbing, the office manager, said the men escaped with some cash, obtained at gunpoint from a drawer and the safe. The amount stolen was not immediately determined.

The two men, described as in their late 20's, engaged Helbing in a discussion about a loan shortly before 10 a.m. Then one of them wedged the office door with a hammer to prevent anyone else from entering while the other threatened Helbing with a .38-calibre revolved and forced him to hand over the money.

'Doctrine' Chances Improving in Senate

WASHINGTON (UP) — Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson said today that chances of the Senate approving the "Eisenhower Doctrine" have improved as the result of an administration compromise on its economic aid features.

The Texas lawmaker referred to an amendment agreed to last week by Secretary of State John Foster Dulles. It provides that no money can be spent under the proposed aid program for the Middle East until 15 days after Congress has been notified of each project the funds will finance.

The combined Senate Foreign Relations and Armed Services committees resumed public hearings on the President's resolution today. Twenty witnesses from various private organizations were scheduled to testify.

As originally proposed by Mr. Eisenhower and approved by the House, the Middle East resolution would give the President a free hand in alloting $200 million in already-appropriated funds on aid projects. No congressional scrutiny would be required.

Johnson, however, hailed the proposed Senate limitation as a means of opening the aid program to "congressional and public scrutiny." He said it will give Congress and public "full opportunity to study and weigh specific projects."

Johnson predicted the Senate also will require some form of time limit on the other major provision of the resolution — the one giving the President authority to use U.S. military forces, if necessary, to combat any overt Russian aggression in the Middle East.

Guard

calming congressional ire in the Wilson-Guard dispute. Three top defense officials — Stephen S. Jackson, acting assistant secretary of defense for manpower and reserve; Army Secretary Wilber M. Brucker, and Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, Army chief of staff—went before a House Armed Services subcommittee to explain the Wilson proposal that originally set off the controversy with the Guard.

President Defends Wilson

At present, youths between 17 and 18½ years of age may escape the draft by joining the Guard and undergoing 48 weekly drills and 15 days of summer field training a year until they reach age 28.

Wilson, over the Guard's objections, has ordered that all Guard recruits after April 1 take six month's active duty training like other reservists.

Mr. Eisenhower has defended the Wilson plan as a means of making the Guard a better trained reserve force, but he called Wilson's "draft-dodging" charge "unwise."

Loughran

Thus far, Loughran's opponents for judge on the Democratic ticket are incumbent Edward G. Bauer and District Attorney Alexander Sculco.

McShane, it was learned, was a former political associate of Loughran's but began shunning Loughran when the latter split with the Democratic organization last December.

The party squabble, which has been smoldering for months, broke into the open on Dec. 13 when Sculco gave Loughran notice either to drop his judgeship ambitions or resign as an assistant district attorney. Loughran preferred to resign and immediately announced his candidacy for judge.

Since his resignation, Loughran has been busy rallying forces to his side in an effort to beat the organization.

One of his first moves was to ask Frank P. Ezerski, Jr., assistant city solicitor of Monessen, to run for district attorney. Ezerski has been giving the invitation serious consideration and may issue a statement on his intentions this week.

Meanwhile, Loughran is seeking possible candidates for county coroner, a position now held by Stephen D. Yoney, of Monessen, and for clerk of courts and prothonotary.

The former assistant district attorney said he wants a "slate" to compete against the organization's "slate."

Saud Optimistic Over Talks

WASHINGTON (UP)—King Saud of Saudi Arabia has authorized a statement saying "there is good reason to hope" his talks with U.S. officials "will contribute to the establishment of stability and harmony in the Middle East."

The statement, issued late Sunday night by the King's press spokesman, Abdullah Balkhair, said, "the discussions are progressing in an amicable atmosphere."

"While the discussion have been concerned chiefly with problems which affect our two governments," Balkhair said, "they also have dealt with matters that concern the entire Middle East.

"His majesty, King Saud, is emphasizing Arab problems in the discussions and is attempting to promote further understanding among all the Arab countries and the United States."

Since Saud's talks with President Eisenhower and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles last week, U.S.-Saudi Arabian negotiations have been turned over to second-echelon officials. Saud was scheduled to receive a briefing on the latest negotiations today from his royal counsellors.

They have been conferring with their opposite-number American teams on a program of economic and military aid for Saudi Arabia and continued U.S. operation of the large air base at Dharhan which the United States is leasing.

Irwin Coed Is Killed; Others Hurt in Plane

JOHNSTOWN, Pa. (UP) — A heavy fog was blamed today for the crash of a single-engined private plane that killed an Allegheny College coed and injured three other persons, one critically.

The craft, a four-seat Cessna, crashed eight miles north of here Sunday in a fog so dense that automobiles were using headlights.

Killed was Frieda Hensler, 18, Irwin, Pa. Injured were the pilot, Ralph Fox, 40, and his daughter, Ruth, 18, both of Elyria, Ohio, and Mary Taliak, 18, Parma, Ohio.

Fox was in critical condition in Lee Hospital with multiple fractured ribs, fractured right leg, chest injuries and shock. His daughter was listed as fair with a fractured shoulder and possible fractured skull and back.

Miss Taliak, found in a dazed condition about a half mile from the crash scene, was in fair condition at Johnstown Memorial Hospital.

Miss Fox and Miss Taliak also are students at Allegheny College at Meadville Pa.

State Police said Miss Hensler had been a weekend guest at the Fox home and was en route to her Westmoreland County home before returning to school.

Air Route Traffic Control Center at Greater Pittsburgh Airport, about 60 miles west of here, said Fox radioed for assistance shortly before the crash. Fox said he was lost for air control authorities were unable to guide him because of poor radio connections.

Young Fugitives Are Caught

OAKEY, Kan. (UP)— Three young fugitives, who held two sheriffs hostage and stole four automobiles during the past two days in a wild escape from a Nebraska jail, were captured today in Kansas.

They had fled Kansas only two weeks earlier in another escape from a jail in Topeka, but were caught in Nebraska.

They told sheriff's officers and state patrolmen who captured them in a pasture about eight miles north of Winona, Kan., that they were headed for Pensacola, Fla.

Oakley police jailed the three—Robert McQueen, 25, of Grand Island, Neb.; Robert Loften, 17, an AWOL airman from Forbes Air Force Base at Topeka, and Larry Wray, 16, of Topeka. Sheriff David Weinland of Logan County said Kansas authorities would file charges.

Kansas highway patrolman Harold Fleckstein spotted the fugitives driving a country road near Winona. He chased them for about 15 minutes, until they wrecked their car. When they scrambled from the automobile, several men in a sheriff's posse were waiting.

"We were covering all the roads and pasture there," Weinland said. "They gave up without any trouble."

Flood Cleanup Work Is Underway

By UNITED PRESS

Thousands of victims of a flooded coal-mining area in three states today began clearing mud and rebuilding their damaged and destroyed property.

Scores of Appalachian Mountain towns inundated last week by some of the worst flooding in a generation were scenes of devastation that was expected to run above $1 billion in property damage.

The known death toll stood at 15. Some 15,000 families were homeless. A number of mines were forced to shut down for repairs, adding the hardship of unemployment for thousands of miners.

Supervisor J. L. Gilley of a U.S. Bureau of Mines sub-district warned that roofs of many mines in eastern Kentucky and southwestern Virginia are in an "extremely hazardous condition."

Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther, president of the American Red Cross, said after a weekend helicopter tour of the area that funds will be provided for long-range relief work in Kentucky, Virginia and West Virginia.

There was additional emergency help from the Army, National Guard, and state authorities. President Eisenhower had earlier declared portions of the three states disaster areas.

The flood danger was believed past in the hard-hit area despite forecasts of more light rains.

Downstream flowoffs caused some overflow in widely scattered areas.

FLOODS COME TO THE COAL MINE REGIONS — Flood waters lap the bridge at Barbourville, Ky., and spread across the earthen levee into the town and surrounding areas. Thousands of persons are homeless in the four-state area of the Appalachian mountains coal-mining region.

Humphrey Faces Questioning

Depression Remark Is Discussed

WASHINGTON (UP)—Congress sought a fuller explanation today of Treasury Secretary George M. Humphrey's warning that there will be a "hair-curling" depression unless government spending is reduced in future years.

Humphrey was called for questioning by the joint Senate-House Economic Committee, which is reviewing President Eisenhower's annual economic report.

The committee Sunday night made public testimony by Dr. Raymond J. Sanliner, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, who appeared to take a somewhat milder view than does Humphrey on the dangers of a depression.

Sanliner, who testified before the committee last Monday, refused to interpret Humphrey's warning. But he said he did not believe the present government spending level, which does not exceed revenue, is "a factor likely to produce depression conditions in the immediate run."

He said a balanced budget is "an anti-inflationary element in our program." But he said he would like to see a larger surplus than the $1.7 billion forecast in President Eisenhower's proposed $71.8 billion budget for the fiscal year starting July 1.

Mr. Eisenhower told a recent news conference that Humphrey was not talking about the immediate future in making his depression warning, but of the long-range future. Mr. Eisenhower, in effect, denied there was any sharp disagreement between him and Humphrey over the size of the administration's record peacetime budget for fiscal 1958.

Both the President and Humphrey have invited Congress to trim the budget if it can justifiably do so.

A social hour honored Sam Icovangelo, who served as council activity chairman, and who will leave soon for the army. Stephen Sinchak won the evening award.

Security Curtain Hides Identity Of Moscow's Mystery Patient

LONDON (UP) — A tight security curtain today hid the identity of a mystery patient ill in Moscow and added fuel to the fires of an international guessing game.

The guesses ranged all the way from such top Soviet leader as Deputy Premier Lazar M. Kaganovich to a relatively unknown but important atomic scientist.

There was this much to go on:

1. Dr. Hans Joachim Sulten, a blood disease specialist in Cologne, Germany, suddenly was summoned to Moscow. He was not told his patient's identity.

2. The patient must be of importance to warrant the sudden summons.

The Supreme Soviet meets in Moscow Tuesday and the leaders will be scanned closely for important absentees.

In New York, the tabloid Daily News added a cloak-and-dagger touch to the speculation. It quoted Washington "intelligence sources" to the effect that Kaganovich had been shot mysteriously in a Kremlin power struggle and is near death.

Was On Tour

A United Press Moscow dispatch made no mention of the Daily News report but said flatly that Kaganovich had completed a two-week tour of Siberia only Sunday and had returned to Moscow. The report would seem to eliminate him from the guessing game, since the Cologne blood specialist was summoned to Moscow Saturday.

But there were other names.

They included Foreign Minister Dmitri Shepilov or former Premier Georgi Malenkov, both of whom were known to have been ill recently.

Dr. Schulten eliminated them with the statement that his patient was a man between 50 and 60 and said he was not a Soviet leader known to the West.

East German Radio Report Different

BERLIN (UP) — The East German Radio said today Soviet Deputy Premier Iazar Kaganovich visited a cement factory this weekend and chatted with construction workers.

The New York Daily News reported today Kaganovich was near death from gunshot wounds inflicted last week in a plot to kill him.

The East German Radio made no mention of this report. It said only the cement factory was somewhere in the Soviet Union.

Also mentioned was Soviet Deputy Defense Minister Marshal Alexander Vassilevski. The marshal has not appeared in Moscow in some time and he would fit the age group mentioned by Dr. Schulten.

The London Daily Express speculated that it could be Soviet Security Chief Ivan Serov who also has been absent from public functions and is in his mid-fifties.

. .. ..An Atomic Scientist . ....

The Express said the man might also be an atomic scientist or an important satellite leader.

Pickup 2nd pgh: Kaganovich, 64,

Kaganovich, 64, is a hard-core Stalinist who wants to remove from power Communist Party Chief Nikita S. Khrushchev and Premier Nikolai Bulganin, the dispatch by News Washington Correspondent Jerry Greene said.

"Khrushchev and Bulganin, recognizing Kaganovich as the chief schemer in a plot to bring their ouster and a complete Kremlin reshuffle, reportedly ordered the deputy premier shot," the News said.

"Something went wrong," the dispatch said. "Kaganovich was only gravely wounded when struck down by a bullet Thursday night, and now he is apparently receiving every care."

"Dr. Hans Joachim Schulten of Cologne, West Germany, was hurriedly summoned by the Kremlin and flew to Moscow Sunday to treat Kaganovich," the News said.

The United Press correspondent in Moscow reported Sunday that Dr. Schulten, a blood specialist, had been flown from West Germany to treat a critically ill "mystery patient" in Moscow. Schulten told United Press he had examined the patient, but did not know who he was. He said he did not recognize him from photographs of leading Soviet politicians he had seen in newspapers.

In Critical Condition

Schulten said the patient was in critical condition. He said the patient was not Foreign Minister Dimitri Shepilov or Deputy Premier Georgi Malenkov, both of whom have been reported ill recently. He has not revealed what ailment the patient is suffering from.

Kaganovich, the only Jew remaining in the Soviet hierarchy, was known as the "Iron Commissar" while serving as troubleshooter for the late Premier Josef Stalin. He was regarded as Stalin's most able lieutenant. During the early collectivizations he forcibly put down peasant objections against the regime and punished entire areas by seizing local food supplies to create artificial famine.

Revision of Election Laws to Follow Report

WASHINGTON (UP) — Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson predicted today that Congress will revise federal election laws.

His prediction came in the wake of a report by the Senate elections subcommittee Saturday that spending on last year's presidential and congressional elections soared far past $33 million.

Sen. Albert Gore (D-Tenn), who helped write the report, said he will sponsor a bill to limit campaign gifts and spending. He said it will follow the general recommendations made by the majority of the elections subcommittee.

Gore said he was conferring with Johnson and other leaders of both parties in the Senate and House to work out an acceptable bill. Neither he nor Johnson would discuss its details.

The subcommittee said it found "an unhealthy state of political affairs" in which Republicans outspent Democrats almost two to one. It said there is "imperative and immediate need" of reform legislation.

Johnson and Senate GOP Leader William F. Knowland introduced a "clean elections bill" last year. It went to the Senate Rules Committee and was never seen again.

The Democrats said big business contributed "largely" to the Republicans while labor gave "almost entirely" to the Democrats.

The subcommittee showed the Republicans spent $20,685,387; the Democrats $10,977,790; labor committees, $941,271; and miscellaneous, $581,277 during last year's campaign. The total was $33,185,725.

Helicopter Used In Sea Rescue

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. (UP) — A Navy helicopter flew a commercial fisherman 10 miles from his boat to a hospital here Sunday when he was injured as his left foot jammed between a deck obstruction and the cable of a net being lowered into the ocean.

Richard McKean, 28, of Margate was taken aboard the aircraft after the skipper of the fishing boat radioed the Coast Guard of the accident. The coast guard notified the Naval Air station at Pomona and the 'copter was sent to the scene.

McKean's foot was amputated during an emergency operation at Atlantic City General Hospital.

Reporter Tells of Tour Made Through Mine Two Years Ago

By LON K. SAVAGE

RICHMOND, Va. (UP) — "There's one chance in a million this mine will ever explode," a miner, five miles in the Pocahontas Field Company's Bishop mine, said.

This morning, an explosion ripped through the mine, trapping three crews of 36 or 37 men, 2,000 feet deep. Searchers had begun removing bodies by 8 a.m.

I toured the mine two years ago to see the sprawling system of shafts and tunnels and tracks that extend underground for miles along the West Virginia - Virginia border.

The miner who showed me the face of the No. 3 seam at the end of a five-mile flatcar ride into the earth said the miners received months of training in safety to prevent such accidents as the one today.

I took photographs of miners attending safety classes. Mine officials said the classes received 100 per cent voluntary participation by the miners.

At the bottom of the mine, I took pictures and notes of the safety operation.

Searches For Gas

The miner who escorted me had the job of blasting and sawing coal from the face of the shaft. Before he would enter a new area, he waved a specially built lamp in the working area to detect the slightest amount of gas. The lamp, he said, would burn a different color when gas was present.

Behind those cutting into the face, other miners bolted the shaft ceiling with thousands of automatically riveted roof bolts. The face of the mine was never dug more than 50 feet ahead of the ceiling bolts.

Heavy canvas partitions hung to separate the sections of the mine where blasting, drilling and sawing took place. If there was an explosion, the partitions would soften the blow.

After each dynamite blast into the face, the miners would creep forward through clouds of dust. My friend, waving the lamp ahead of him, watched its flame intently. The Bishop mine is one of the most mechanized in the United States. Drilling into the face, scooping from the ground, loading into the cars is all done automatically.

Work would not begin until the face miner had crept to the face with his lamp, had inspected the seam, the joints and the walls and ceiling.

Review Mine Disasters

In the safety classes, miners were taught how explosions occur. They reviewed the details of history's most horrible mine disasters. They went over the causes and discussed how they could have been prevented.

The miners also learned how to use gas-detecting lamps. They were shown how the flame burned in the presence of gas by artificial means.

They also learned every detail of bolting a ceiling to prevent caveins. And they were taught how to spot ceiling bolts that were ready to give.

The town of Bishop is supported solely by the Pocahontas mine, which works around the clock to produce, wash and ship out 10,000 tons of coal a day. The mine is the second largest in the Pocahontas coal fields and is one of the largest in the United States.

The miners live approximately a mile from the mouth of the mine here in company - owned white clapboard houses. Their streets are neat and orderly. Almost every house has a garden in front of it.

neat and orderly. Almost every house has a garden in front of it.

Meade said exploding gas apparently caused the disaster. Bad air and smoke hampered searchers as they tried to reach the men.

Meade said the three crews were led by section foremen Raymond Owensby, Sylvie Myers, and Ralph Altizr. All three, with their crews, were missing. Meade said all three were married and have children.

The Bishop mine is the second largest of the Pocohontas Fuel Company's widespread soft coal operation in Virginia and West Virginia.

The mine has two mouths, one of them here and the other three miles away at Horsepen, W.Va.

The mine office here is in Virginia but the entrance, about 100 yards away, is across the state line in West Virginia.

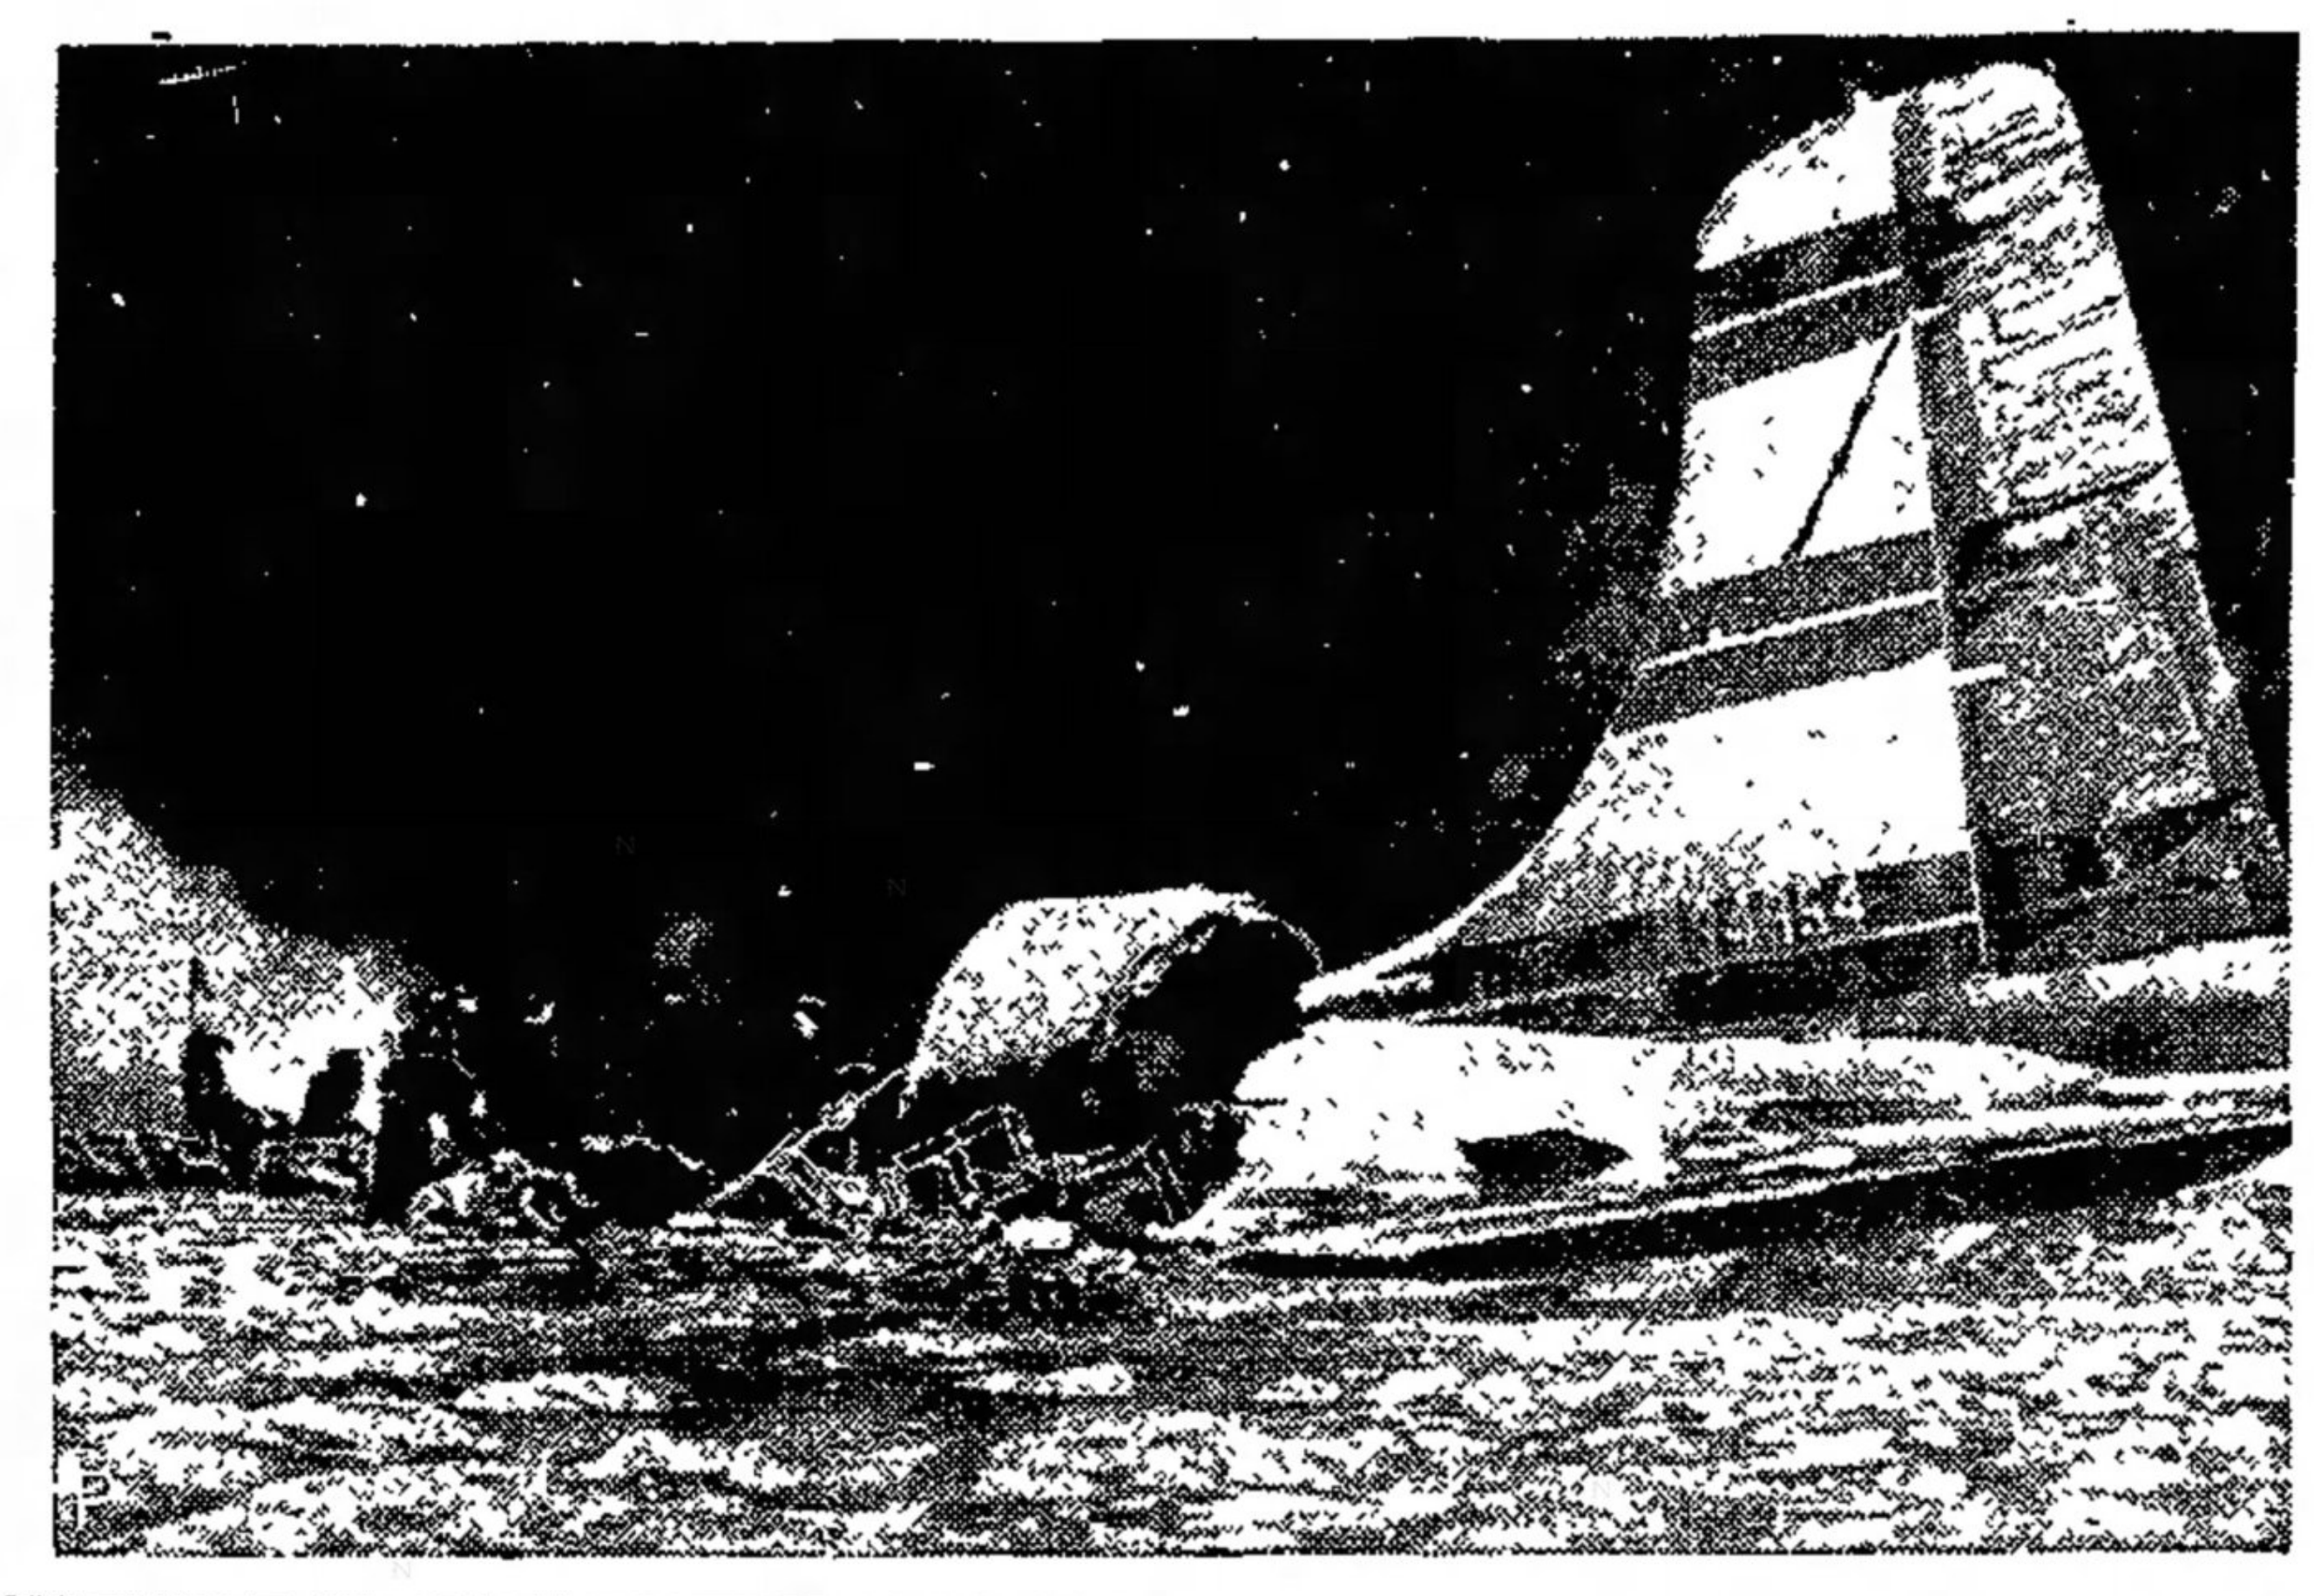
The mine, with shafts running five miles, employs 800 men and produces about 10,000 tons of coal per day through one of the most modern mechanized coal operations in the country.

Meade said the families of the miners here were "taking it pretty hard." He said "none of them have gathered around the mouth of the mine, but are gathered anxiously in their homes talking about the accident."

The mine continued production during the recent flood although flooding around the area made it difficult for crews to reach their job, an official said.

The nearby town of Pocohontas, site of the company offices, also experienced some flooding, it was reported. An official said several families were forced from their homes.

One mine official said the explosion occurred about two miles down in the mine. He said, however, there were some side shafts whose entrances were less than two miles from where the blast occurred.



WRECKAGE OF PLANE IN WHICH 20 PERSONS DIED — Firemen check the still-smoldering wreckage of the Northeast Airlines DC-6A which crashed on Rikers Island, N. Y., minutes after it took off from LaGuardia Field in a blinding snowstorm, killing 20 passengers, injuring 59 others. Fourteen are in critical condition. The airliner was packed to capacity with Miami-bound vacationers. The six crew members were among the uninjured survivors. Among them was Capt. Alva March, 50, a veteran Northeast pilot who survived a similar crash in the East River in an attempt to land at LaGuardia Airport five years ago. In 1953, his plane's landing gear collapsed coming in on Runway 13, but only three passengers were slightly hurt. (Additional pictures on pages 9 and 10).

Nine Plane Crashes Since Thursday Claim Lives of 34

By UNITED PRESS

At least nine plane crashes since Thursday have killed 34 persons—11 of them in Southern California and 20 in the flaming crash of a Northeast Airlines ship at Rikers Island in New York.

In addition, at least six other persons are missing in plane crackups.

Investigators still are seeking the iause of the airliner cras near LaGuardia Field Friday. Northeast Airlines has denied the wreck was caused by overloading. Eleven of the 101 persons aboard were children.

The string of air tragedies began Thursday with the collision of two planes over Pacoima, Calif., killing five airmen and three students who were struck by falling wreckage in a schoolyard below the crash point.

In other Southern California crashes, a Navy pilot died near San Diego and a Marine flyer was killed on the slopes of Mt. San Antonio in Saturday accidents. A police pilot was killed in the crash of a private plane Sunday at Compton, California.

A B47 Stratojet bomber exploded and crashed off the Atlantic Coast near Gloucester, Mass., Friday, shortly after the New York crash. The body of one flyer has been found, and three others still are listed as missing. Another person was killed Sunday at the controls of his private plane which went down near Rutledge, Tenn.

Also listed as missing is a jet trainer pilot whose craft crashed off Cape Cod Friday and two Kansas City men whose plane is belived down in Mississippi or Tennessee.

A single-engine private plane crashed in a heavy fog eight miles north of Johnstown, Pa., killing an 18-year-old Allegheny College co-ed and injuring three other persons.

U. S. to Survey 10 Counties in Parts of State

ERIE, Pa. (UP)—The U.S. Department of Agriculture, which twice refused to declare 10 northwestern Pennsylvania counties as a crop disaster area, has agreed to reconsider and will send a representative into the area within a week to conduct a survey.

J. Collins McSparran, master of the Pennsylvania State Grange in Harrisburg, said the decision followed a conference he attended in Washington last Wednesday, according to the Erie Sunday Times-News.

The National Disaster Committee of the USDA twice turned down requests for the designation by the State USDA Disaster Committee and Gov. George M. Leader.

Counties involved are Erie, Crawford, Venango, Warren, Clarion, Clearfield, Butler, Lawrence, Mercer and Forest.

They suffered severe corn, wheat and oat crop losses last summer because of excessive rainfall followed by an early frost.

McSparran said the outlook was favorable for receiving the disaster designation. Such action would result in federal aid for farmer grain purchases in the form of script to be used for credit from feed dealers.

Tugboat Talks Held Today

NEW YORK (UP)— Mayor Robert F. Wagner and federal mediators meet today with representatives of New York's tugboat owners and crews in an effort to settle a strike which has caused a critical fuel shortage in the New York metropolitan area.

The mayor announced he would "receive a full report on the situation preparatory to taking further action."

Wagner is expected to give immediate attention to plans for rationing of the city's fuel supply. The 4,000-worker strike is reported to have choked off 70-per cent of incoming fuel shipments and petroleum industry representatives have predicted a fuel shortage "in a few days".

The union is seeking improved fringe benefits and an 18 per cent pay raise. The employers have offered a 12 per cent pay increase over a two year period. Tugboat workers earned an average of $1.76 to $2.80 an hour.

Clerk of State House, William Habbyshaw, Dies

HARRISBURG (UP) — Funeral Services will be held Wednsday for William E. Habbyshaw, 64, clerk of the state House of Representatives.

Habbyshaw, a long time political confidante of Sen. M. Harvey Taylor, former Republican State chairman, died in Harrisburg Hospital Sunday after an operation to repair a ruptured heart artery.

A leading figure in the local GOP organization, Habbyshaw complained of feeling ill while having coffee in the capitol cafeteria Friday and was aided to his office. He was rushed to the hospital when his condition became worse.

Habbyshaw served 10 years as a state representative from Dauphin County, beginning in the 1933 Legislature. He resigned his post as chief clerk to the Dauphin County commissions in 1943 to become chief clerk in the House. He held the House post continuously except during the 1955-56 session when the Democrats controlled the chamber.

Somoza Is Easy Election Winner

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UP)—U Early returns from Nicaragua's general election pointed today to an overwhelming victory for U.S.-educated Luis A. Somoza to succeed his assassinated father as president.

First votes counted in the capital gave the 35-year-old Somoza 60,000 to 3,000 for the Conservative Party's presidential candidate, Edmundo Amador.

The voters also balloted Sunday for a new Congress. Returns were expected later today.

Somoza's election was a foregone conclusion months ago when Congress appointed him to fill the office until the national elections after the assassination of his father, Anastasio Somoza.

Union Council May Suspend Three Members

MIAMI BEACH (UP)—The AFL-CIO Executive Council will consider today whether to suspend three member unions accused of corruption and mishandling of millions of dollars in welfare funds.

This next-to-last session of the council's annual mid-winter meeting here was expected to be highlighted by the disclosure of a report on the three unions by the AFL-CIO Ethical Practices Committee.

The unions named were the 25,000-member Distillerys, Rectifying and Wine Workers Union, the 72,000-member Laundry Workers International Union and the 73,000- of America.

Walter P. Reuther, vice president of the AFL-CIO and a member of the Executive Council, indicated in Washington Sunday that all three unions would be suspended on charges of welfare fund abuses.

The Ethical Practices Committee denounced the unions, saying they have shown "refusal, reluctance and inability to clean house." The full report was expected to name racketeers and gangsters who are alleged to have received thousands of dollars in union funds.

The Hesitation on The 'Doctrine'

NOW THAT the House of Representatives has adopted President Eisenhower's proposals for American action in the Middle East by an overwhelming bi-partisan vote (355 to 61), public attention turns to the Senate.

From the time the President delivered his special message on the Middle East last month, it has been taken for granted that Congress eventually would give him the authority requested, both to use the armed forces to counter any Communist aggression and to provide economic and military assistance to Middle East countries.

Nevertheless there appears to be an undercurrent of hesitation and doubt in Congress, patricularly among Democratic members.

UP TO THIS POINT, however, the reasons for the doubt and hesitation are not altogether clear. One can read, for instance, the speech on foreign policy which was delivered by Sen. Mike Mansfield. Democrat, of Montana, last week. This speech apparently was carefully prepared and, to judge from the comments of other Democratic senators, was intended to be a definitive party statement.

But while a fine thread of doubt ran through Senator Mansfield's address and while it included some very generalized criticisms of the Eisenhower foreign policy, nowhere did it say concretely just what it is that is bothering the Democratic senators.

In fact, towards the close of his speech, Senator Mansfield offered a resolution which embraced the two essential features of the Eisenhower resolution. All the Montana Senator proposed in addition was that the United States undertake to solve such indigenous problems as the Arab-Israeli dispute. The Eisenhower administration, of course, is as much aware of such problems as is Senator Mansfield and only omitted them from the present policy proposals because they do not relate, except perhaps indirectly, to the threat of Soviet Communist aggression.

WE ARE RELUCTANT to conclude from the ambiguity of the Democratic statements, including Senator Mansfield's speech, that some of the Democratic senators are hesitating, not because of any specific, substantive doubts about the correctness of the Eisenhower proposals, but because they feel some compulsion to object, at least in some tenuous way, to what a Republican President and a Republican Secretary of State are proposing to do.

This is not to say that there is not room for doubt as to whether the administration's policy is correct. We doubt that any thoughtful American, including Mr. Eisenhower himself, feels that a blank-check authorization to the President to use American armed forces in a troubled area is without the most serious risks. And we should not accept these risks without the most serious discussion and consideration.

There is, however, a difference between that kind of discussion and the rather whining, half-hearted, nebulous complaints that so far have characterized some of the Democratic utterances. And the partisan nature of some of the complaints was made evident in the recent personal attacks upon Secretary Dulles.

There is plenty of room in a bi-partisan foreign policy for vigorous opposition. But we doubt if the opposition can make a very constructive contribution to such a policy by wringing its hands and hemming and hawing in the face of crucial decisions.

The Proper Spirit

THE PROCESS known as "urban redevelopment", in which Monessen is becoming seriously interested, is one of the most difficult and complex municipal operations ever invented. It can be properly compared with major surgery on the human body in that it is apt to be costly and painful.

No city should attempt redevelopment on a large scale unless its people and their leaders feel that it is urgently necessary, as a matter almost of life and death, in order to save the community from the diseases of blight and obsolescence. And once having determined to embark on redevelopment, the city should not flinch from the cost and pain.

Experience in other cities has shown that one of the early obstacles encountered in redevelopment is the unwillingness of some citizens, including businessmen and property owners, to put the community's future before their own immediate interests.

Self-preservation, of course, is a basic human law, and we should think that any sound redevelopment program ought to take every possible precaution to safeguard existing interests and investments.

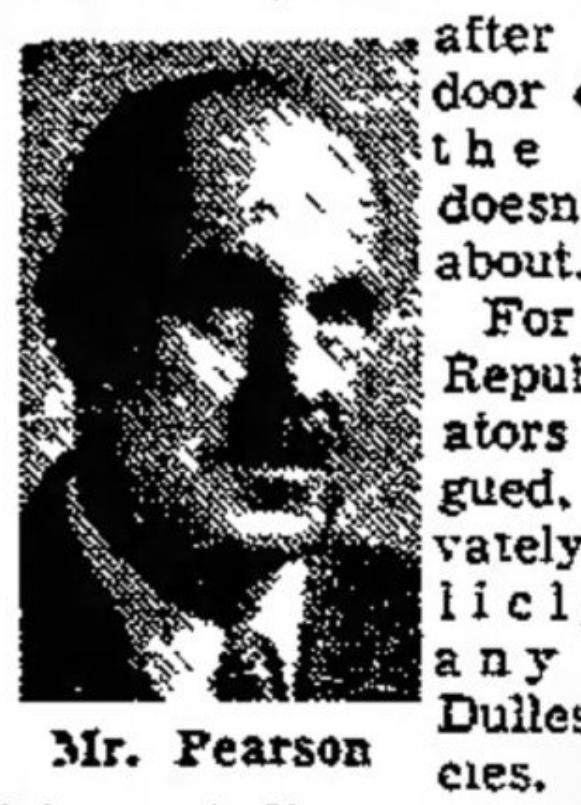
But businessmen and others who may be concerned in the matter should try not to judge redevelopment proposals only by the is-this-good-for-me formula. The first test of any development plan must be: will this do for the community what needs to be done?

Any plan which passes that test should be capable of including adequate safeguards for private investments

Merry-Go-Round—

Arabian Air Base Mainly For Oil Firm

By DREW PEARSON



Mr. Pearson

WASHINGTON — One of the healthiest recent decisions of the Senate is to investigate American policy in the Near East, dating back to the Truman administration. The decision was reached after a closed - door debate that the public doesn't know about.

For some time Republican senators had argued, both privately and publicly, against any probe of Dulles's policies. Senator Aiken of Vermont argued that such a probe would be dangerous, would destroy the Secretary of State. Senator Fulbright of Arkansas, who initiated the idea, argued that if such an investigation would destroy him, then Dulles's policies were seriously lacking.

Finally, in closed-door session, Sen. Dick Russell of Georgia spoke up, calm and brief. He had not said much before.

"Now, gentlemen," he asked, "do you really wish this country to believe that you don't want the people to know about the conduct of our foreign affairs? Do you want this to be a strict party vote against any investigation?"

There was a sudden hush on the Republican side, followed by whispers. GOP senators suggested a delay of 48 hours, then 24 hours, obviously to consult. Finally they agreed to come back at 10 a. m. next day.

At that time they voted unanimously to proceed with the full investigation of the New East under both Eisenhower and Truman.

Why U. S. Base?

This column would be delighted to suggest to the senators where they can get some important information. Part of it is covered with dust right in their own files. Very important, for instance, is why the U. S air base in Saudi Arabia was actually established.

President Eisenhower discussed with King Saud last week a renewed lease on this base, and it was reported that the King wanted a sizable amount of American arms in return. However, Senate records of the old Brewster Investigating Committee show good reason to believe that this base was originally established not because it was of any military value, but to please the American oil companies which already have reaped a fortune from Saudi Arabia.

Senators will find in their files a report by Brigadier General Donald P. Booth, assistant to the Undersecretary of War, dated 1946, which is classified secret. To it, General Booth attached the following warning:

"It is believed particularly important that this classification (secret) be respected. If there is any part of the subject matter which you wish to declassify for publication it is requested that the matter be referred to the War Department and the State Department for clearance."

I can reveal, however, that Booth's report showed that the British in July, 1944 blocked the U. S. base until May 5, 1945 on the ground that they, the British, already had four bases in Arabia which we could use. May 5, 1945 was one day before the war ended in Europe. And on that day it was decided to go ahead with the Dhahran base on the belief that it would cut off air miles in flying from Cairo to Karachi.

State Department Wanted Base

One week later, the war in Europe being over, the War Department suddenly reversed itself and wanted to cancel the Saudi Arabian base. It saw no reason for it But the State Department argued otherwise. For reasons not specified but understood to be the protection of American oil companies, the State Department demanded that the base be built.

The State Department carried the argument up to President Truman, and on Sept. 28, 1945 he OK'd the base, provided a new contract was drawn, giving the United States all postwar air rights, and provided Congress voted the necessary funds.

However, Sen Owen Brewster of Maine, then head of the Senate Investigating Committee, was unable to find that Congress had ever authorized the $4,000,000 spent on the base. Furthermore, he reported that no new contract was drawn.

"The Army presented King Ibn Saud with an airplane," Brewster remarked at that time, "and it looked as if the airfield was built to please the King — so his plane would have a place to land."

Senator Brewster also turned up amazing evidence showing how the oil companies dominated American policy in the Near East. This will be described in a subsequent column.

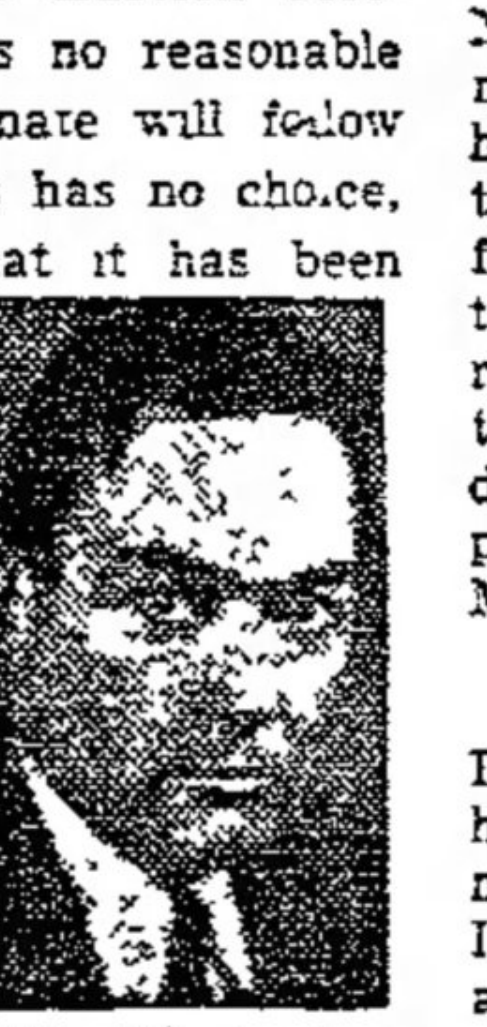
Today and Tomorrow—

Secret Diplomacy Expected

By WALTER LIPPMANN



Mr. Lippmann

The House has approved the President's Middle Eastern resolution and there is no reasonable doubt that the Senate will follow suit. The Congress has no choice, given the fact that it has been told by the President that he needs extraordinary powers to save the Middle East from Soviet domination and from war. For this is an argument which is not in fact debatable.

The President has at his command the whole diplomatic, informational, and intelligence establishment of the government, and no one in Congress is in a position to contradict him when he says that there is great and imminent danger which he can avert only if he can act without having to consult Congress.

We are seeing once again a demonstration of the familiar truth, that under our constitutional system on the issues of peace or war the President has the paramount power.

Congressmen Troubled

What is unfamiliar about the resolution is that it is being adopted in time of peace, and that it consists of a blanket approval in advance of whatever the President decides to do in the Middle East. There is no precedent for such an action by Congress, and constitutional precedent which it establishes is troubling deeply some of the most conscientious and responsible members of the Senate. They think that Congress seems to be voting away its right to hold the Administration to account for the employment of the armed forces and for the expenditure of public money. Their constitutional qualms are entitled to a respectful hearing before the votes are cast There should not be an attempt to silence them on the ground that it is somehow unpatriotic to debate the President's extraordinary proposal.

The real case for the resolution is that the President needs extraordinary and unprecedented powers because he is proposing to deal with what is by American experience an extraordinary and unprecedented situation. The President has accepted the responsibility of playing the leading part in dealing on behalf of the Western world with the Soviet Union and with the anti-Western Arab agitation. To play this part requires more than arms and more than money, more than public declarations and votes in the United Nations. It requires secret diplomacy not only with the nominal heads of governments but with the great courtiers and with the factional leaders. The simplest way to describe the Middle Eastern resolution now before Congress is to say that it grants to the President a congressional license to practice secret diplomacy in the Middle East.

Secrecy Necessary

This does not mean that Mr Dulles explained so little because he has secret plans which he does not care to explain to Congress. It means that whatever plans or aims he may have would be frustrated in the Middle East if he expounded them publicly to Congress and to the American press. The political leaders of the Arab world, of whom King Saud is in some considerable measure representative, do not belong to the age or to the tradition of open diplomacy conducted by free-speaking democracies

If the United States is, for example to have a hand in the intricate and secret, but crucial, diplomatic game now being played by Nasser in Egypt, King Saud in Saudi-Arabia and Muri in Iraq the United States has to indulge in the un-American practice of secret diplomacy.

We shall have to wait and see how our brand of secret diplomacy works. The art of secret diplomacy is a special art, and not one that can be learned easily or quickly. We do have, it is true, a considerable number of young men who have become experts in the inner politics of various Middle Eastern countries But at the top of affairs the men who must make the decisions, beginning with the President and his Secretary of State have only begun to acquire the kind of intricate knowledge of the Middle East which the successful practice of secret diplomacy requires. Secret diplomacy is the extreme opposite to diplomacy by broad public declarations

All this leads me to think that when the resolution is adopted, we should continue to be vigilant. We should continue to realize that we are embarked on a kind of diplomacy which is outside the American tradition. If anything goes wrong with it, we should be prepared for an alternative — for some kind of open plan negotiated among the great powers, for a truce and a standstill.

The Cynic's Corner—

"I hope we don't make the same mistakes the British did, now that we're in the Middle East . . . "

Herbert Hoover, Jr., Did An Effective Job

By ROSCOE DRUMMOND

Mr. Drummond

The Eisenhower administration continues to draw good men to the government — and to lose them.

The latest is the substitution this week of Christian A. Herter, former Governor of Massachusetts, for Herbert Hoover, Jr., who resigned after nearly four years service as Under secretary of State.

Mr. Herter brings demonstrated capacity to a critical post which has been well filled by Mr. Hoover, who had hoped to leave the government, for personal reasons, six months ago. He stayed on longer, however, to serve during the weeks Secretary Dulles commuted to London for the Suez conference and later during Mr. Dulles' recovery from his operation.

I suppose that in a position like that of Undersecretary of State, where so much is done behind the desk and so little is done in public, no newspaper correspondent can know for sure how well such an official is carrying his load and precisely what influence he is exerting on policy formulation.

Nobody could be in the government at his level as long as Mr. Hoover without making some enemies within the ranks and no doubt there were some who found it convenient to use him as a whipping boy when they didn't get their way.

Did Effective Job

From my own observation and such experience as I had with the retiring Undersecretary — and this view, I believe, is widely shared by his associates in the State Department — Mr. Hoover did a painstaking and effective job under circumstances which were at times difficult.

He was a loyal and able instrumentality for carrying forward the policies of Mr. Dulles. There was never significant disagreement between them; he was never a roadblock to what Mr. Dulles wanted to accomplish and never had to be persuaded against his will. He and the Secretary of State saw things alike

Mr Hoover began his diplomatic service by doing more than any single individual to resolve the bitter Anglo-Iranian oil controversy which almost plunged Iran into the grip of the Soviets.

He has been an advocate of American economic assistance to the Middle East and was one of those in the government who are ready to go forward with the Aswan Dam project until it became clear that it was not going to be economically and politically possible.

He was acting Secretary of State when the American government obtained a copy of the famous Khrushchev speech indicting and downgrading Stalin for all the crimes in the Russian language. Mr. Hoover had the boldness and the imagination to insist that the department immediately make it public and exploit it to the full, which, with the cooperation of the U. S. Information Agency, it did very well.

Shunned Publicity

Mr. Hoover was one of the least self-seeking public officials I have known. He was not waiting around to be Secretary of State. He is a rather diffident man who prefers to work behind the scenes. He never courted publicity but rather shrank from it.

Furthermore, he was perfectly aware, as we all are, that Mr. Dulles preferred to run his own show in the public exposition of foreign policy whether in major speeches or in big press conferences. In small gatherings of correspondents Mr. Hoover exhibited an incisive, wide-ranging grasp of events and was not hesitatnt to speak his mind.

These are, no doubt, some of the reasons President Eisenhower said this week he hoped that Mr. Hoover would be available for now public service "soon." His preference, I think, would not be for any large administrative job but for trouble - shooting chores wherein his special experience and talents would be most useful.

Right now Mr. Eisenhower is giving important foreign policy responsibility to two men in whom he has high confidence and trust. One is Chris Herter, whose early work in the foreign service, long tour of duty in the House Foreign Affairs Committee and experience as a two-term governor give him good equipment

The other is Arthur Larson, the cool, quiet, bookish "now Republican" who is taking a firm hold on the Information Agency after service in the Department of Labor Mr. Larson now works at a vantage point which puts him into the meetings of the cabinet, the National Security Council and the Operations Co-ordination Board. I suspect the President is readying him for other duties when the need arises

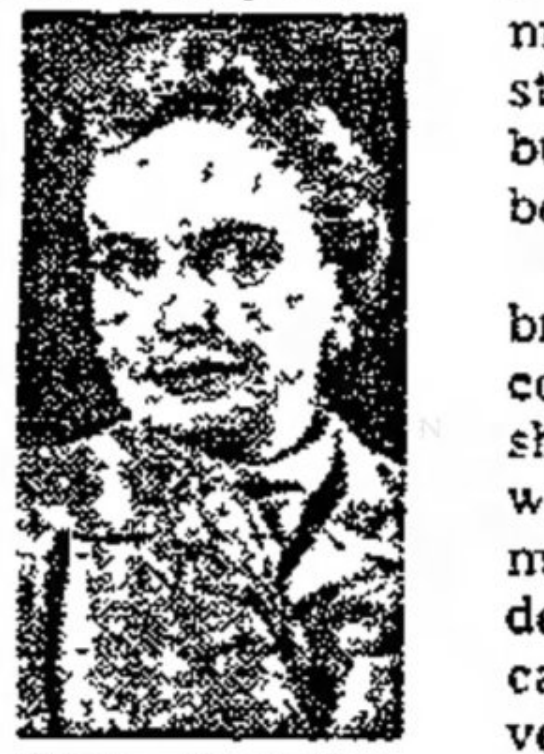
Trip to Moon Is O. K., But How About Return?

By MARGARET LATROBE



Mrs. Latrobe

Whichaway did they go, and who said tourism isn't big business?

One Sunday paper casually mentioned that nearly 1,350,000 Americans left the country last year — passports, visas and luggage. Even with parts of the Mediterranean off limits, tourists don't care, they just go somewhere else One 98-day South Sea safari departing Jan. 17, 1958 is heavily booked.

With that many Americans in that frame of mind and purse, why the scepticism about flying saucers? With a full queue waiting to board the first flight to the moon, how is it that we discount the same venturesome spirit in chaps who may inhabit other orbits than our own.

Rear Admiral Delmar S. Fahrney (USN Ret), once head of the Navy's guided missile program and now chairman of a private outfit investigating aerial phenomena, seriously believes observers who say they have seen flying saucers. "Reliable reports," according to Admiral Fahrney, "indicate there are high-speed objects entering ou atmosphere" which neither Russia nor America tee'd off.

So firmly do I believe Admiral Fahrney is right, that I suggest we hold off on our own moon-rocket plans until we meet some of the folks hovering around in the atmosphere waiting for landing instructions. It seems to me that, bully though the moon trip may be, our return tickets are too hazy.

Sure, let s go. With a few good bridge players and expense account blanks along, any trip seems short and pleasant. Cruise clothes worn by moon maidens aren't quite my style. Oxygen tanks and padded longies do nothing for my so-called figure, but no matter. Adventure is not for the vain. Whatever fashion dictates for getting out of this world the hard way, fetch me in size 16

Just so we understand about the round-trip angle. I know our groun crew can shoot us off into space. Who shoots us back home?

Get busy, Admiral. If the National Investigations Committee on Aerial Phenomena can signal some of these flying saucers, teapots, or salad bowls in for a landing, our work's half done already and we may not have to bother building moon-cruisers. The saucers set have gone out of their way looking for business. I say let's travel with them, at least until that round-trip reservation is confirmed.

International Club To Have Birthday

Monessen Quota Club will meet on Wednesday evening in Johnson's restaurant for a dinner session and business meeting. Highlighting the evening will be plans for the observance of the 38th birthday anniversary of Quota International.

This year the local club will again join with the Monongahela and Charleroi Quota Clubs for the birthday celebration, which probably will be held in Charleroi. Definite plans will be announced following the Wednesday evening session.

Miss Julia Mazur is president of the local club.

Quota Club International's 38th birthday celebrations during the month of February will help to finance graduate fellowships for non-Communist women overseas, who qualify for study in United State colleges and universities.

Asks Aid

Dr. May Virginia Valencik, International president, called upon the 10,000 members of more than 300 clubs in the United States, Canada, Mexico and Australia to increase their contributions to the International Fellowship Fund. Annual maintenance is now being provided to one graduate student chosen with the assistance of International Education.

The Intern tional Club is aiming to supply several fellowships in the very near future so local clubs have been asked to place increased emphasis upon this program.

Other projects supported by Quota, a classified service club for women executives, founded in Buffalo in 1919, include assistance to the hard of hearing and cooperation with groups such as Girl Scouts, Camp Fire Girls and the YWCA dedicated to promoting the welfare of young women.

Other Goals

The goals of the organization have been broadened since its organization and the local club has also increased its activity. The women devoted considerable time to making surgical cancer dressings and just recently presented a book cart to the Charleroi-Monessen Hospital.

Quota International pays $1200 a year toward the college education of the visiting student and this amount is obtained from member clubs or individual donations.

The Chiropractor And You

NORMAL SPINE FOR HEALTH

BY

Dr. Frank F. Tucci

Perhaps you find it difficult to understand why Chiropractors confine their work to the spine, when remote parts of the body are diseased. But you find nothing strange about pushing a button on the wall to light a globe suspended from the ceiling. The procedure is practically the same. Connection is made between the sources of energy, the brain for the body and the dynamo for the electric globe.

It makes no difference whether it be the heart, stomach, kidneys, or some other organ, normal functions of all organs, muscles, glands and tissues of the body depend upon supply of the vital nerve energy conveyed to them over the nervous system from the brain which generates this energy. Nerves emit from between the vertebrae, so when falls, jars, jolts or strains misalign a vertebrae, pressure on nerves is produced which interferes with normal transmission of nerve supply, resulting disease.

Adjusting the subluxated vertebrae is like pushing the button to produce light. It restores the flow of vital nerve energy and health is the natural result.

To you it may seem miraculous that we can adjust vertebrae to regulate blood pressure, correct constipation, sinus, stomach or kidney trouble, in fact, most of the ills of which humanity is subjected. Instead of treating effects, the scientific Chiropractor seeks the cause responsible for effect, known as disease, and by proper adjustment eliminates the cause.

Health is your natural heritage. Join the thousands of men, women and children who have realized health benefits by keeping their spine in normal alignment. Do it today.

Farrell Lions May Drop Tournament

There's a rumor that the Farrell Lions Club may drop its annual holiday basketball show. It seems the tourney has not been a financial success in recent years . . . Incidentally the "take" at both the recent Johnstown and Ford City Holiday promotions also fell below expectations . . . Charleroi High coach Henry Pennline is one fellow who isn't sold on the fast break. Reasons Pennline: "Unless you have a big floor and the speed to go with it, the fast break can be more detrimental than helpful. Especially to a team which has to play on a 'hop, skip and jump' floor like ours. Besides, you can count on one hand the number of times a team scores on a fast break during a game."

Up California way, they're still hopeful that plans for a spanking new high school—with a modern gym—will be realized despite the recent mine shutdown . . . Speaking of California, two new football foes will grace the schedule next season. Scottdale and Bethlehem Joint will replace Brownsville and Midland in the opening two assignments . . . Monongahela High is one of the few valley schools that still insures its football players with a private firm. The Wildcat gridders are covered up to $2,500 for "ordinary" injuries, and $7,500 for dismemberment. There is also a $1,000 death clause. The latter two benefits have never been collected and chances are they never will be.

Basketball Fortunes Change in a Hurry

Basketball fortunes change in a hurry, particularly in the Junior WPIAL. For example, Washington was by far the best team in Section 2 last season. As a matter of fact, some critics described the Washington boys as the finest Junior High team they had ever seen. But it's a different story this year. Washington has yet to win a game in six league starts . . . Bob George, who played in the shadow of Red Worrell at Centerville High this past football season, is reportedly headed for the University of Pennsylvania . . . Stan Musial, who has signed for his 16th season of big league baseball, wants to reach the 3,000 hit circle before calling it a career. Stan now has 2,781 hits and needs only 219 more safeties to reach his goal.

Not satisfied with sports results, North Huntingdon Township school directors fired both head football coach Kass Kovalcheck and basketball boss Don Rose last year. Under new direction, the 1956 Bulldog football team won one game, tied one and lost seven. The basketball team is currently limping along with two wins and 11 losses . . . By the way, NH football coach Dick Bestwick has already quit to accept a job at Grove City. And Ed Addis, the former Brownsville basketball coach, has dropped all of his seniors to build for the future. That's usually a desperation move in coaching. Addis has nothing to lose, though, since he's resigned, too.

Duckpin Bowling on TV Falls Through

That plan to present duckpin bowling matches over KDKA-TV has apparently fallen through. Several Monessen bowlers were signed to contracts last summer through the ARBCD. However the word is out that a proposed sponsor backed out at the last minute, figuring the venture would be too costly . . . By the way, ten pin bowling is proving a big hit on other television channels. It's possible the sport may sweep the country in much the same manner as wrestling during the early days of TV. To begin with, most viewers are also bowlers themselves. So it's an added kick to see the experts in action.

Today's Sports Parade —

Joe McCarthy Was Always a 'Loner'

By OSCAR FRALEY

NEW YORK (UP) —The "man who pushed the buttons" was, even on his greatest day, all by himself.

There was more than a hint that "Marse Joe" McCarthy would make it into the baseball Hall of Fame. And he did it long last Sunday along with "Wahoo Sam" Crawford.

But the iron-jawed Irishman from Buffalo as usual had the door to his office closed.

That usually was the story when he managed the Chicago Cubs, those great teams of the New York Yankees and those disappointing teams of the Boston Red Sox. He could be approached but it was difficult.

Because Joe McCarthy always was a "loner."

He's Still Alone

He was alone again on what should have been his greatest day, sitting in solitude on his Buffalo estate while the baseball world made merry in the plush atmosphere of a New York hotel.

They were all on hand for the New York baseball writers dinner. There was Casey Stengel and Bucky Harris, who succeeded him at the helm of the mighty Yankees; Joe DiMaggio, whom he called "the most natural player of them all;" George Selkirk, "one of my favorite players;" guys who had played for him like Phil Rizzuto and Tommy Henrich, and people with whom he had been associated over the years.

They would have liked to have had him there: Yankee owners Del Webb and Dan Topping, General Manager George Weiss, and people he knew such as Bob Feller, Hank Greenberg, Charlie Grimm, Frank Lane, Sal Maglie, Roy Mack, Bill Veeck and many others.

"Is it a sure thing that I'll be elected?" he asked when he was invited to sit on the dais.

Hate To Be Embarrassed

"No," he was told. "It's not a sure thing."

"Well, then I'd better not come," he replied. "I'd hate to be embarrassed."

You never thought of McCarthy, the curt, gruff Irishman, as a man who worried about such things. And yet there was a hint in his past that he could be. He wasn't genial, nor congenial, and yet he never ceased to fume at the charge by Jimmy Dykes back in the old days that he was "a push button manager."

Nobody ever got really close to him. For "Marse Joe" was all business. The first day he walked into the Yankee clubhouse, on a tour of duty destined to win eight Yankee pennants, he took one look at the players' big wooden card table and told the clubhouse man:

"Get an axe and break that up!"

A fight fan, he was, and a fighter. There was no softness in him and it had to make him a lonely man. Which is the way he was on his big day. But don't think he didn't deserve the honor which came to him even in his solitude. As one who missed him at the dinner said:

"Shucks, anybody could win with the Yankees. But this man won a pennant with the Cubs, too."

A strange accolade. But some solace, you hope, for a hard man who was soft underneath — and lonely to the end.

Gridders Threaten Union

By BILL LOFTUS

CLEVELAND (UP) — National Football League players threatened club owners with an industrial-type union today in their determined fight to gain recognition for their players' association.

The club owners rejected the association during their three-day Philadelphia meeting which ended Sunday.

The owners commented, "We will not recognize anyone as a bargaining agent."

The players, through their representatives and legal counsel, expressed amazement at the owners' rejection and warned industrial union methods might be used to gain the sought-after recognition.

Possible Union Affiliation

A joint statement from Norm Van Brocklin of the Los Angeles Rams and Kyle Rote of the New York Giants as player representatives and the association's legal counsel, former Notre Dame football star Creighton Miller, revealed a Washington union official had contacted the players about possible union affiliation after the owners flatly refused to recognize the players group.

"Apparently the owners want us to pattern it (the association) after industry and make recognition mandatory," the statement said.

The players said they still wanted a baseball-type player-management relationship, but said they planned further conferences with the union official and informed NFL Commissioner Bert Bell to that effect.

While rejecting the players' association as bargaining agent for the men on their teams, the owners approved most of the "inadequacies" claimed by the players.

No Minimum Salary

The owners agreed to pay transportation expenses of players to training camps; provide them with all equipment for all league games; pay up to $12 for meals and lodging if circumstances made it impossible to lodge and feed all the players together, and allow pay advances during the training season.

The players said they had asked for payment of $50 weekly for veterans and $25 weekly for rookies during the training season in addition to their salaries, but the owners agreed only to allow players to draw $50 weekly advances against their salary. However, those released would not have to repay the money.

A $5,000 minimum salary and a guarantee of full salary for incapacitated players were not approved.

Ricketts Seeks To Improve Foul Record Tonight

PITTSBURGH (UP) — Duquesne's Dave Ricketts, who hasn't missed a foul shot in more than a month, has a chance to extend his major college record of 40 straight tonight when the Dukes meet Niagara.

The 6-foot, 2-inch forward from Pottstown, Pa., who has clicked on 103 of 115 free throws this season, established a collegiate mark against St. Francis of Brooklyn last Wednesday when he hit 10-for-10 from the charity line. He broke the mark of 38 set earlier this season by Columbia's Chet Forte.

Dave, a senior who uses a two-hand push shot with the ball at eye-level, last missed from the charity line Jan. 3 against Dayton. Since then, the Dukes, with a 10-5 record, have played Villanova, Cincinnati twice, De-Paul, St. Bonaventure and St. Francis.

Other games tonight are Carnegie Tech at Steubenville, Ohio, Washington & Jefferson at Bethany, W. Va. and Westminster at Baldwin-Wallace.

In Western Pennsylvania's only action Sunday, St. Bonaventure took the lead midway through the first half and rolled to a 70-62 verdict over St. Vincent at Latrobe.

Ken Fairfield led the victors with 16 points, but St. Vincent forward Harry Folk took individual honors with 23. The Bonnies trailed by a point midway through the first half, but went ahead on a field goal and stretched their margin to 45-37 at halftime.

Midget League to Meet Tomorrow

Monessen's Midget Football League will hold its annual reorganization meeting tomorrow night at the MHS gym.

The session will take place immediately after the Monessen-Bellmar basketball game.

Allen Kline, president, said that nine members will be elected to the Board of Directors. Eight other Directors serve by virtue of their standing in the community.

Later the Directors will meet to select their officers for the coming year.

Tomorrow's meeting is open to all members of MFL. As a matter of fact, current officials are hoping for a large turnout.

"We especially want the parents of the players to be represented," a league spokesman said.

Take Charge

Last season, the parents took charge of concession stands at Memorial Stadium. The league hopes to sponsor the same project this year.

"Naturally we want as many persons as possible to have a voice in this matter," said the MFL spokesman. "The success of our program has hinged largely on the fact that so many persons have been willing to help. We hope that spirit continues."

Year-end reports will be submitted during the meeting by Secretary Harold Wilkins and Treasurer John Mallino.

A league spokesman described the MFL's financial position at the moment as "healthy."

Coach Paul Kunsa's front-runners will meet East End at 9 p. m. in the feature of a triple-header card.

Other games will show Viaduct against the Yellow Jackets at 7 and Cips against Big Five at 8.

The Cro-Ams have breezed through 15 straight games without a setback. And even though the pressure is mounting, they are heavily favored to add East End to the long string of victims.

7-8 Chart

The East boys have a 7-8 chart at the moment. At times they have been mighty good this season.

Viaduct, three games behind the Cro-Ams, figures to win at the Jackets expense while third place Big Five is the choice over the last-place Cips.

Mantle to Sign For $60,000

NEW YORK (UP)—If you think Mickey Mantle hit some big ones last season, wait 'till you see the one he's hitting today.

Master Mickey, the American League triple crown batting champion, is slated to become the fourth highest paid New York Yankee of all time today when he formally inks a 1957 contract calling for a $60,000 salary.

That's nearly twice the $32,000 he received in 1956 when he led the loop in batting, home runs, and runs-batted-in.

And, in the annals of the proud and successful Yankees, that's topped only by the $100,000 paid to Joe DiMaggio, the $80,000 received by Babe Ruth, and the $61,500 that will be delivered this year to catcher Yogi Berra.

Loi Wins Bout On Disqualification

MILAN, Italy (UP) — Dulio Loi of Italy, the European lightweight champion, won a scheduled 10-round non-title bout with Bobby Ros of Spain Sunday when the Spaniard was disqualified by the referee for butting in the fifth round. Loi was winning by a big margin when the but was halted.

Trotters To Appear Here Wed.

The Harlem Globetrotters — those famed basketball clowns — will make their first Mon Valley appearance in history on Wednesday when they meet the House of David dribblers at the Monessen High School gym.

The Trotters will come to town with a cast that will be "big" in more respects than one.

To begin with, the troupe includes more than 30 players and entertainers. Besides the two teams there will be no less than four top notch vaudeville acts as special attractions.

Then, too, the players, themselves, are big. Every man on the Trotters roster stands 6-3 or better.

The House of David cagers are not much smaller. They do have a couple of players slightly under 6-0, but seven of their men stand 6-3 or more.

Unbeaten as Usual

As usual, the Trotters are coasting along unbeaten. They seldom lose until their post-season challenge series with the College All-Stars or Pro League champions. Even then, their setbacks are mighty few and far between.

That's not to say that the House of David outfit is a pushover. In their own right, the bearded basketballers are mighty tough.

The David squad will also provide a sharp contrast to the fun-loving Trotters. The team was originated in Benton Harbor, Michigan, under the sponsorship of the Israelite House of David cult. The players grow their hair and beards long and they are vegetarians. Members of the cult do not believe in killing animals.

This picturesque team has travelled all over the North American continent, winning friends everywhere.

New Wrinkle

Abe Saperstein, owner and founder of the Globetrotters, has added a new wrinkle this season by organizing vaudeville shows to be presented prior to the Trotters appearances.

The Monessen show will include The Carlells, Wild West Lassoers; Bourne and Anderson, a table tennis duo; Don Philips, unicyclist; and Mike Pickering, juggler.

These acts have earned rave notices all along the Trotter circuit this season.

Tickets for the show and game are now on sale throughout the Mon Valley for $3. A spokesman for the sponsoring Monessen Knights of Columbus said that more than 1,000 good seats are still available. However fans are advised to pick up their tickets as soon as possible.

Kadis Drive in Waynesburg Goes Over Top Already

A drive in Waynesburg to raise $1,000 toward defraying the medical expenses of Richard Kadis, 21, Geneva College football player, has already been surpassed by $200.

However officials of the drive plan to keep it going until at least March 2 when a special event is being arranged in the Waynesburg gym.

Kadis was injured Sept. 29 in a game with Waynesburg. He underwnet brain surgery in Pittsburgh and later was transferred to Cleveland Clinic Hospital where he has remained in a semi-conscious condition.

Medical bills so far have totaled more than $10,000.

Kadis' parents paid $6,900 on the bill, then borrowed $3,000 more to meet expenses. With the bills still coming in, they face a difficult future.

Among other things, the Kadis parents must pay $22 per day hospital bill and $360 a week for three nurses who watch the gridder around the clock. Physicians fees and other expenses add even more to the bill.

The Waynesburg fund drive was originated to help defray some of the costs. Anyone may contribute by mailing a donation to the First National Bank in Waynesburg in care of the "Richard Kadis Fund."

Downey and Lindsay Win Four-ball Event

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (UP)—Mary Ann Downey and Marjorie Lindsay, who had triumphed before with different partners, shared the championship today in the 12th annual Hollywood Women's four-ball golf tournament.

Miss Downey and Miss Lindsay captured the crown Sunday with a 3 and 2 victory in the 36-hole final round over the youthful team of Ann Quast of Marysville, Wash., and Anne Richardson of Columbus, Ohio.

Miss Downey, of Baltimore, Md., won the title in 1953 when teamed with Mary Lena Faulk of Thomasville, Ga. Miss Lindsay, of Decatur, Ill., won in 1948 with Pat Devany of Gross Isle, Mich.

But Hounds Have Little Hope of Overtaking Cougars

It's pretty generally agreed now that the Charleroi Cougars won the Section 5 basketball title last Friday without putting on a uniform.

The idle Cougars moved a game and a half in front of second place Monessen when the Hounds ran into a 42-41 licking at Brownsville.

That setback dropped the Hounds two games back in the loss column.

Even the most optimistic Monessen supporter can't imagine the Cougars losing two of their final six games.

However the gritty Hounds aren't ready to quit by any means. There's still mathematical hope and the current cagers intend to cling to it.

Thus the Hounds figure to be in high gear tomorrow when Bellmar pays a visit to the MHS gym.

Favored to Win

Earlier in the year, the Hounds topped Bellmar by a 66-44 score at the tiny Cane gym. And they are favored to duplicate that performance.

Much, of course, depends on the Monessen morale. The Brownsville loss must have taken some enthusiasm from them.

Still the Hounds look too tough for the visitors.

Two other Section 5 games are scheduled. Brownsville will go to Donora while Monongahela will visit Charleroi.

The pace-setting Cougars are heavily favored to win, thereby moving a step closer to the valley crown.

In Section 10, fading Rostraver will play host to Hurst. The Leps, now 4-3 in the league standings, can't afford to lose anymore this season if they are to nurse along their title ambitions.

Other Games

Other tussles will show Dunbar at Scottdale and Ligonier at Ramsay.

No games are on tap in Section 17.

The Junior High front will be busy tomorrow. Monessen will go to Washington, Donora to Monongahela and Charleroi to California in Section 2.

Over in Section 3, Rostraver will be at Perryopolis, Carroll Twp. at Vernon and Marion at Fallowfield.

BOWLING

By JOE JANNOTTA

May I take time out in today's column to thank you readers for the many nice letters I've received. There's no doubt that bowling is the fastest growing sport around. Your comments prove it.

It seems to me that I may be of help to you as individuals,

If you have any question on duckpin bowling, why not send it along to me. If I can't answer it, I'll go to someone who can.

Lots of Fun

Bowling is lots of fun. And there are many techniques which make it even more enjoyable. Perhaps your fault can be easily corrected. So don't hesitate to write me, in care of The Daily Independent.

And now a report on what's to come in our bowling corner. Beginning Wednesday, we plan to present a series of illustrated spares.

McCarthy Sent To Hall of Fame

Sam Crawford Also Picked for Spot with Baseball Heroes

By TIM MORIARTY

NEW YORK (UP) — Joe McCarthy, who never was good enough to play in the major leagues, entered baseball's Hall of Fame today along with Sam (Wahoo) Crawford, the man who walked in the shadow of the great Ty Cobb.

McCarthy, 69-year-old ex - manager of the New York Yankees, and 76-year-old Crawford, former slugging outfielder for the Detroit Tigers, were named as the 82nd and 83rd members of the famed shrine at the bi-annual meeting of baseball's special committee on veterans.

Although he had managed the Chicago Cubs to the National League pennant in 1929, McCarthy was considered a "busher" when he was picked to succeed the illustrious Miller Huggins as bossman of the Yankees two years later. After all, the experts argued, what did a minor league player know about managing a great team like the Yankees?

However, the jut - jawed Irishman went on to become one of baseball's most successful managers, leading the Yankees to eight American League pennants and seven World Series championships.

Crawford, too, had a tough row to hoe during 19 years in the majors. He spent 13 of those years as "that other guy" in the Tiger outfield with Cobb, but wound up with a .309 batting average and a record major league total of 312 triples.

McCarthy, now living the life of a country squire on a farm outside Buffalo, N. Y., and Crawford, a resident of Los Angeles, will be inducted formally in the Hall of Fame at Cooperstown, N. Y., next July.

In 24 years as a major league manager, McCarthy's teams never finished out of the first division. One of his greatest wrecking crews was the 1932 Yankees. Led by Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig—two other Hall of Famers — the Yanks won 107 games in winning the AL pennant that year and then crushed the Chicago Cubs in four straight World Series games.

The Yankees also won four straight world titles under "Marse Joe" in 1936-37-38-39—a mark which stood until Casey Stengel led the same team to five series victories from 1949 through 1953.

Standings show Notre Dame, 8-4; Georgetown, 7-5; St. Vincent, 7-5; Duquesne, 6-6; St. Francis, 5-7; and Fordham, 3-9.

College Quints Begin Make or Break Week

By UNITED PRESS

Ohio State's Big Ten pacemakers walk into the dean of revengebent Illinois tonight to touch off a "make or break week" for many of the nation's basketball conference leaders.

Illinois is anxious to trample somebody, anybody, in payment for the 85-74 upset it suffered at the hands of Purdue on Saturday night to drop back in the league race. Ohio State, with a 6-1 league record, could get hurt in the rush.

If the Illini, ranked seventh nationally, can whip eighth-ranked Ohio State, then Purdue can take over the Big Ten lead by beating Michigan at Ann Arbor, Mich.

Conference Leaders Challenged

Thid dogfight in the Big Ten is matched in almost every major court loop in the country. Before the week is over, the leader of every major conference will play and the outcome of these games will go a long way toward deter- post-season tournaments next month.

Three other league leaders will go to the firing line tonight, only two of them in league games. Brigham Young, ranked 16th nationally, risks its slight hold on the Skyline Conference lead in a game against Montana; West Virginia risks its perfect 7-0 Southern Conference mark against VMI and Bradley, ranked 11th nationally, steps out of the Missouri Valley Conference to try for its 14th win against two losses against Portland.

In each case the league leader will be favored but they all might do well to fear the upset fate of Illinois last Saturday, as well as that of sixth-ranked Louisville, which bowed to Memphis State, 1-7.

A 24-point effort by Bill Greve of Purdue and the playmaking of J e Campbell were the major factors in Purdue's win over Illinois. Memphis State hit an amazing 50 per cent of its shots in handing Louisville its third loss of the season.

Here's the situation in the major conference races:

Big Ten: Ohio State, 6-1, Purdue (5-1), and the three tear s tied for third at 3-2—Illinois, Michigan, and Indiana — all must still be given a chance. If Ohio State hurdles Illinois tonight, then it must risk the lead again against Indiana Saturday.

Pacific Coast Conference: UCLA (6-0 faces a big threat in Washington while California (also 6-0) takes on losing-record Oregon State.

Ivy League: Princeton 5-0) is trailed by Columbia and Yale (each 43). Columbia and Yale scrap for second place Wednesday, then Yale meets Princeton Saturday.

Southern: West Virginia (7-0) won't meet runner-up Washington and Lee (5-1) during regular season, but faces two league teams. this week.

Southeastern: Kentucky (7-1) is in driver's seat; can drop to a tie for lead only in unlikely event it loses to Mississippi Friday while Auburn (5-2) wins two games. national leader with a 16-0 overall mark and 6-0 league record, faces about as tough a week s it wil get. Tar Heels visit Maryland Tuesday night, then play host to day.

Big Seven: Kansas (4-1) faces runner-up Nebraska 2-1 on Saturday.

runner-up Nebraska (2-1) on Saturday.

Missouri Valles: Bradley (6-0) doesn't play a league game this week, but Wichita and St. Louis (each 5-2) play twice.

Southwest: SMU (5-1) meets co-runner-up Baylor (4-2) Tuesday in one of two games this week. Rice (also 4-2) plays only once.

Skyline: After Brigham Young (5-1) meets Nea Mexico tonight, it faces Utah (-2) in a big one Saturday. Meanwhile, third-place Utah meets second-place Montana (5-2) Thursday.

Casper Takes Top Honors in Phoenix Open

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UP)—A new winner led professional golf's tournament tour into Tucson, Ariz., today.

Bill Casper Jr., playing only his second full year on the big money circuit, walked away with the Phoenix Open championship and $2,000 in prize money Sunday with a nine-under-par 271 for the 72-hole grind.

The 25-year-old Bonita, Calif., par-busted set his sights on winning the $15,000 Tucson Open, beginning Thursday. If he does, he'll be the first double winner of 1957.

In five tournaments thus far, there have been five different victors. Doug Ford won the Los Angeles Open; Ed Furgol, the Caliente Open; Jay Hebert, the Bing Crosby Tournament; Jimmy Demaret, the Thunderbird Invitational at Palm Springs, and Casper here.

The new Phoenix Open champ shot great golf to beat out defending titlist Cary Middlecoff, National Open champion, and Mike Souchak. Middlecoff and Souchak tied for second, three strokes behind the winner.

Lloyd Mangrum, former National Open champion and still a tough competitor, although he now is a grandfather and playing the tournaments mainly for kicks, was four strokes back in third place with a 275.

"I know I am doing the right thing," Marciano said Sunday night at a dinner sponsored by the Kenosha Holy Name Society. "I have decided to be a family pleaser instead of a crowd pleaser."

Rickey Feels Jackie Has 'Some' Qualifications to Be a Manager

By RUDY CERNKOVIC

PITTSBURGH (UP) — Jackie Robinson qualifies on two of three key requirements to become organized baseball's first Negro manager but it would take a thorough study to determine whether he makes the grade on the taird.

That's the opinion of Branch Rickey, the man who picked Robinson to be the game's first Negro player. Robinson, who retired last month amid a storm of controversy, has indicated that he would return to baseball if he were offered a manager's job.

In an exclusive interview with the United Press, the 75-year old Rickey asked and answered three questions about Robinson's managerial chances:

1. Does Robinson have the knowledge of the game required?
2. Would he be a good disciplinarian?
3. Would he be able to handle the Negro problem from the new standpoint as a manager as he did when he was a player?

"On knowledge of baseball, the answer has to be 'yes,'" said Rickey. "Insofar as being a good disciplinarian, I think the answer there is also yes."

Third Question Unanswered

The third question, according to Rickey, cannot yet be answered:

"What the conditions would be and how he might be able to handle conditions from the standpoint of the Negro problem, I do not know," Rickey told the United Press. "I would have to make a very serious and thorough investigation and research on that point.

"It would involve many of the same sort of inquiries that confronted me when he was hired as a player," Rickey continued. "That's a new kind of a job, with new public relations and would require some study."

Rickey then reviewed the steps leading up to his selection of Robinson to break the game's color line in 1946 and 1947 with particular emphasis on his investigation into Jackie's so-called "taking powers."

"The so-called 'taking powers' was to have the poise under verbal attack or to have the self control under something that would exceed verbal attack," Rickey explained. "His resentment to insults and whatnots—these were pointed out in some illustrative detail, and I am positive that Robinson had never given consideration to the form of criticism to which he might be subjected, and was subjected. He was not really the type to 'take it.'"

Understood Challenge

Rickey recalled that Robinson "did not flinch" when he realized he was being chosen for a "racial noble experiment."

"After he recovered from his surprise and astonishment, he was quite able to understand the challenge of the job and he accepted it on the terms we laid down," Rickey said. "And by that I don't mean financial terms. I had no difficulty whatever at that point."

Rickey also paid high tribute to the retired star and insisted "he never proved a disappointment to me."

"He fulfilled my highest expectations," Rickey said forcefully. "I think he did a great job indeed in handling himself. There were times when he showed a loss of temper. It was not my expectation that he would be absolutely perfect, but there was no outstanding occasion, nor was there any overt act that gave me any kind of disappointment about Robinson's handling of his personal relations."
